SEAT IN U. S. SENATE RESIGNED BY NEWBERRY; RETIREMENT TO TAKE EFFECT AT ONCE IS ASKED

Special Session of Congress Begins Today

NO ADJOURNMENT EXPECTED UNTIL MARCH NEXT YEAR

REPORTED COOLIDGE URGED TO REFUSE HER

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Washington, November 19.—Congress will meet at noon tomorrow in special session, called by President Harding primarily to consider the administration ship subsidy bill. With only two weeks remaining until the beginning of the regular December session, it is expected to sit continuously until sine die adjournment March 3.

Efforts of Mrs. W. H. Felton of Georgia, first woman senator, to obtain a seat in the senate for a day promised unusual interest in the customary cut-and-dried opening routine. Whether she will be seated still remains a problem awaiting developments on the senate floor. The 87-year-old "grand old lady of Georgia" was appointed by Governor Hardwick to succeed the late Senator Watson.

Walter F. George, bearing his credentials and commission under his election November 7, arrived here today, accompanied by Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia. He said he would not present himself in the senate until after Mrs. Felton had an opportunity to claim the seat. He plans to remain in the senate cloakroom pending a decision as to her status and not to claim his seat until Tuesday.

May Be Refused.

Vice President Coolidge and senate leaders were disposed today to seat Mrs. Felton by unanimous consent, but a single objection, it was said, probably would bar her. Leaders of both parties were said to agree that since Senator-elect George's election she has no legal right to be seated and could not receive mileage allowances or pay, but all appear reluctant to prevent her from taking the oath of office.

There were reports, however, that Mr. Coolidge was being urged, in order to avoid making a precedent, to rule against Mrs. Felton should she present herself.

Neither the senate nor house will plunge into work tomorrow. After roll calls and swearing in of new members, the senate plans to adjourn out of respect to the late Senator Watson, of Georgia, and the house out of respect to Representative Nolan, republican, California, chairman of the labor committee, who died yesterday.

Harding's Address.

President Harding is expected to address congress in a joint session Tuesday. The president's address, it is said, will be brief and will deal mainly with the shipping measure.

Mrs. Winifred Huck will be sworn in tomorrow as a member of the house. She was elected as representative-at-large from Illinois to succeed her father, the late Representative William E. Mason. Seven others elected to fill vacancies in the house also will take the oath of office while the senate will receive a new member, Thomas F. Bayard, democrat, Delaware, victor in the election over Senator T. Coleman DuPont, repub-

GEORGIAN KILLED ON DUCK HUNT; FOUR ARE JAILED

Mobile, Ala., November 19.—(Special.)—The body of J. W. Legette, of Cairo, Ga., is in a morgue at Tallahassee, Fla., and Captain M. Powell of Havana, Fla., and Spencer Barber, of Cairo, together with two other men, are in jail as the result of a shooting affray at Bell's Landing, Fla., last night.

A party of prominent Georgia citizens had come to the lake section to spend a few days hunting.

County Judge B. F. Willis summoned a coroner's jury this evening and viewed the body, but postponed the inquest until 9 o'clock Monday morning.

Legette lingered for several hours after being shot. The news of the shooting of Legette was received here tonight in a telegram from Tallahassee. The body of the dead man was sent to Cairo tonight.

4TH PARLIAMENT OF GEORGE'S REIGN WILL OPEN TODAY

CONSERVATIVE PARTY IN CONTROL OF HOUSES

BY RALPH H. TURNER.
United News Staff Correspondent.

London, November 19.—The British parliament, the fourth during the reign of King George, is to open on Monday. Ratification of the Irish Free State constitution will be the chief business of the session.

Formalities of swearing in members of both the house of commons and the house of lords is to be the order of business. Officials will scrutinize commissions and credentials of members of both houses. Next comes selection of a speaker of the house of commons.

In case precedent is followed, J. H. Whitley, speaker of the last house, will be re-elected despite the fact he is a liberal and that theer is a conservative government in power. The speakership is always regarded as non-partisan.

May Be Upset.

The "die hard" faction of the conservative party, however, may attempt to elect one of their own number as speaker. This would serve to delay matters. There may be fights in connection with the selection of a deputy speaker, chairmen of committees and other officials of the house. These preliminaries, it is expected, will consume several days.

On Thursday, when the commons is duly organized, King George will make his address in person. This will be attended with elaborate ceremonies and formalities.

Eyes of political observers are on David Lloyd George, whose displacement as premier by Bonar Law was ratified by the electorate in the general elections of Wednesday when the conservatives swept the country. Curiosity was rife whether the fiery Welshman would claim a seat on the opposition front bench or whether he will be content with a back-bench seat on the government side of the house.

Contest May Develop.

Any move on the part of Lloyd George to claim the front opposition seat will surely be contested by the labor party, which, with its 141 votes in the house, greatly outnumbers the followers of the former premier. It is expected that Ramsey MacDonald will be chosen the labor whip of the house. He is looked upon by many as the strongest man of the labor party and the best available man to lead his majesty's opposition.

Under the existing treaty with the Irish Free State, the constitution must be ratified by parliament before December 6. This means that members must rush through the three readings of the bill.

Little opposition to ratification of the Free State constitution is anticipated. Bonar Law has pledged himself to carry out to a successful conclusion the work started by Lloyd George.

Aged Man Hit by Girl.

Savannah, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—F. J. Durden, 82, is in a precarious condition at a hospital here as a result of injuries received when hit by an automobile driven by Miss Dorothy Simon, an eighteen-year-old girl. She is under $1,000 bond pending the outcome of the case.

HARDING NAMES DECEMBER 3 TO 9 EDUCATION WEEK

CALLS EDUCATION STRENGTH OF NATION

Washington, November 19.—President Harding, in a proclamation made public today at the white house, sets aside the week of December 3 to 9 as American Education week. He recommends to the proper national, state and local authorities that they give their cordial support and co-operation, and also calls upon parents to enlist themselves in behalf of closer understanding between the school and the home. The text of the proclamation follows:

"The ideals of democratic governments and democratic education were planted simultaneously in our country. The fathers rightly believed that only a people trained to vision of public needs and duties could develop and maintain the institutions of popular government. The system of universal education established in the beginning has developed with the country and become one of the characteristic features of our life. In it we have laid the foundation of that system of American culture which has enabled us to absorb and assimilate millions who have come to us from many countries, bringing the traditions of widely varying institutions.

"In order that we may keep in mind the need constantly to improve our educational system, it is proposed that the week of December 3 to 9, inclusive, be set aside for special observance as American Education week. It is recommended to the governors of the states that they cooperate with the educational and civil authorities of their commonwealth to make the week a period for revival of interest in the broad work of national education.

Source of Gratification.

"It is gratifying to know that in

PIANOS DAMAGED BY SUNDAY BLAZE

$2,000 Fire Loss in Fire on North Pryor Street. Fireman Is Overcome by Smoke.

Fire of undetermined origin damaged several automatic pianos to the extent of about $2,000 at 10 o'clock last night in the store room of the Automatic Player Piano company, on the second floor of the building adjoining the Chamber of Commerce on North Pryor street.

Lieutenant W. B. Fanning, of engine house No. 2, was overcome by smoke while attempting to enter a room on the third floor of the building with a hose. He was carried to Grady hospital for treatment, later returning to his post.

The fire originated in the store room where several pianos had been unpacked on Saturday. Excelsior covered the floor and for a while it was feared the flames would cause considerable damage. F. A. Leatherman, manager of the piano company, attributed the small damage to automatic sprinklers which aided the fire department in overcoming the blaze.

The origin of the fire, according to Chief W. B. Cody, is undetermined, but was possibly caused by a short circuit of the electric wires in the building.

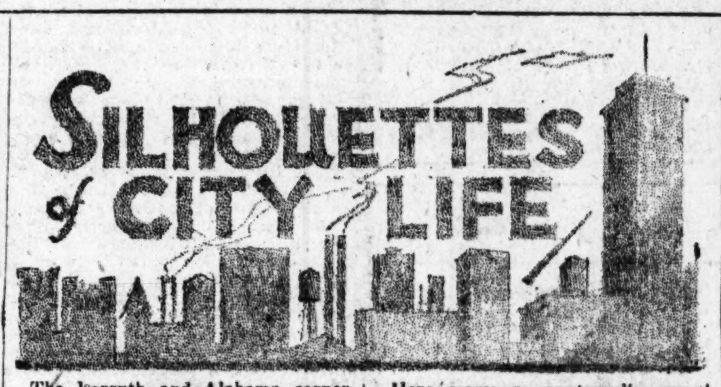
PRIMATE OF BELGIUM ILL WITH INFLUENZA

Brussels, November 19.—Cardinal Mercier, primate of Belgium, is ill with influenza. His condition tonight was reported as progressing favorably.

The cardinal caught cold at the ceremony of entombing Belgium's unknown soldier on November 11 and was forced to bed the following day.



The Forsyth and Alabama corner, between 8 and 9 p. m.—

'Most any night.

A stout woman with a baby in her arms, and a toddling little boy clinging to her skirt, waddles hurriedly toward the corner from Broad street, to where an East Point car stands, waiting for the "Clang! Clang!" which will signal its start. She waves frantically at the conductor and he holds the car. She climbs aboard with his assisting hand. The car moves, slowly turns the corner into Forsyth, and quickly gathers speed on its journey south.

A string of automobiles winds across the viaduct and down beside the underpass. A taxicab impatiently blares somewhere in the line and, as it turninto Madison avenue, speeds past the fire station and round toward the Terminal with its human cargo, rushing to catch a train for one of the far places

Up the street from Mitchell come sauntering two girls. A flivver, with two youths on the front seat, draws tentatively to the sidewalk just ahead of them. They stop for a moment as the boys speak, but after a brief conversation, continue their walk. Must be a twin-six they seek, tonight.

A stout and jovial policeman works his way down the street, trying the doors of the darkened business houses to see that they are safely locked for the night, and exchanging a bantering word with the Greek at the restaurant and the guardian of the all-night garage, a few doors further down.

* * * *

Suddenly there is a blast of hurrying noise from the viaduct and a big truck comes hurtling down the street. It dodges a street car by a scant few inches and careens round the corner into Hunter street. No concern about speed laws, for this is a privileged truck. Make way! Make way for the United States mail!

A slender figure in a nondescript black skirt walks slowly by. From the pasty white face and the aimless gestures of the hands, we know she is a drug addict. There are far too many such in Atlanta, and the sight arouses no surprise. It is a comman one. See, there is another! That man who pauses every few steps and kicks at some object, invisible to all save himself.

A laughing group of young girls and boys come swinging down the street next. On their way to some dance, we guess. Let's wish for them a good time and lots of harmless fun.

Here comes a car traveling north at forty miles an hour. He's breaking the law in more ways than one There is a roar from his cutout as he passes and we half expect to see him crash into some other vehicle as he reaches the Alabama corner. But he goes safely on, over the viaduct and away. There is a special guardian for fools, of a surety.

* * * *

Now the newsies are beginning to gather around The Constitution building, waiting for the early night edition. Amusement seeking crowds must have their evening paper, carrying the last minute developments in the latest murder mystery, the latest wires from the particular corner of Europe where the pains of a laboring world have most recently broken out, and the full scores of the ball games. And the newsies will be ready for them, waiting on the corner as they leave the theaters or finish their evening strolls under the Peachtree and Whitehall whitelights.

Now a stream of shirt-sleeved workers pour out of The Constitution and across to the restaurant near the corner. It is the composing room crew, hungry after three hours of working against time—for the paper must go to press on time—seeking a belated supper in the spare minutes before the second edition is made.

A group quickly gathers on the corner to witness an impromptu battle between rival newsboys. They pummel and push with unscientific vigor, urged on by their pals. The victor struts his triumph for a brief moment while the vanquished covers his defeat by straightening his disarranged clothes. Some day, maybe, these same two will scientifically stall through ten rounds of professional fighting, while a crowd which has paid $2 per seat reassures itself that the fight is "on the level."

There is a sudden rumble from under our feet. It settles into a steady roar. The presses have started. There is a rush for the local circulation room, and the boys come running out, laden with their armfuls of papers, the ink still wet from the spinning presses, to cry, in metaphor—"Extra, Extra. All the history of a day, written while it happened! A nickel!"

Lindsey Given Freedom After Fatal Shooting

Verdict of Coroner's Jury Says R. L. Pair Met Death by Accident.

W. O. Lindsey, 245 South Pryor street, who accidentaly killed R. L. Pair, 34, of 66 Delta place, Saturday night with a small caliber pistol, was exonerated Sunday by a coroner's jury, and ordered released from the custody of the police. In the verdict the jury described the tragedy as "accidental."

In giving his testimony to the coroner Sunday, Lindsey broke down and wept bitterly. He stated that he and Pair were good friends and on the best of terms. They were cleaning a pistol, he stated, and he supposed that Pair placed a cartridge in the chamber. He had just made some additional repairs on the cylinder, he stated, and thought he would try snapping it to see if it revolved properly.

"I was dumbfounded when a shell exploded and I saw Pair with the bullet wound in the head," Lindsey declared. Special Officers W. O. Wood and H. L. Smith, who arrested Lindsey and turned him over to Detectives Hornsby and Austin, stated they had passed the two men in the basement of the terminal building just a few minutes before the fatal shooting, and that they were engaged in cleaning the pistol.

Funeral services for Pair will be held at 2 o'clock Monday afternoon at Stamp's chapel, in East Atlanta, with Rev. A. D. Echols officiating. Harry G. Poole will be in charge. Interment will be in the churchyard.

Besides his widow and four children, his father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Pair; four brothers, T. B., M. S., R. B. and L. A. Pair survive him. Also a sister, Mrs. John Echols.

Negro's Victim Identifies Hat; Arrest Follows

Headpiece Worn by Alleged Burglar's Landlady Leads to Confession.

The wearing of a man's hat by a woman Sunday morning led to the arrest of Otis Hayes, alleged negro burglar, and the recovery of many stolen articles found in his room at 307 Decatur street.

Hayes, according to Detectives W. D. McGee and L. H. Satterfield, had burglarized the home of J. E. Ingram, 1058 Highland avenue, late Saturday night while members of the family were asleep.

The robbery, which was discovered early Sunday, was promptly reported to police headquarters, Detectives Satterfield and McGee begin dispatched to investigate.

About two hours later Mrs. Ingram was dumbfounded to observe a negro woman passing her home, wearing her husband's hat, which had been taken by the burglar. She summoned her husband, who detained the woman until the arrival of the detectives.

"Where did you get that hat?" demanded the officers.

"From a negro who rooms at my house, and he's now asleep, boss," she replied. The officers accompanied the woman and found Hayes asleep, and beside his bed lay the overcoat and other clothing, a gold watch and chain and a handbag, which had been taken from Mr. Ingram's home.

The negro seemed surprised when awakened by the officers and, it is said, readily confessed to burglarizing the home. Everything stolen was recovered, but $2.30 in money and some papers which the handbag contained. The negro showed the officers where he had destroyed these papers, they state.

He will be thoroughly grilled by the detectives in an effort to learn what other robberies he has knowledge of.

STOCKADE SCHOOL SITE IS INDORSED AT TEN CHURCHES

Resolutions Are Adopted Unanimously by Congregations in Southern and Eastern Sections.

OPPONENTS' MOTIVES ASSAILED BY PASTOR

Stockade Site Will Come Up for Discussion in Council Today—Hot Fight Is Predicted.

Resolutions indorsing the action of the board of education and the city bond commission in selecting the Rosalia or stockade site for the erection of the new senior girls' high school were unanimously adopted by ten churches with total congregations estimated at 4,500 people in the south end and eastern sections of the city yesterday, while at least two ministers made the much-discussed problem the subject of their morning sermons.

More than 5,000 persons, from all sections of the city, visited the site Sunday and, according to a number of those there during the day, a large majority came away convinced of the superior facilities afforded by the site. The spacious grounds for the erection of the proposed athletic field, it was claimed, will enable the Atlanta public school system to offer to the athletes of the country one of the best locations in the world for field and track events.

At one time automobiles estimated to number more than 250 were parked on the side of the hill where the site is located while their occupants looked over the rolling hills and water beneath from the plateau on which it is planned to erect the buildings.

Resolution Passed.

The resolutions which were practically uniform in every church take occasion to resent statements made at a meeting of the forces opposed to the site, Saturday night, in which reflections upon the communities surroundding the proposed site were condemned.

The resolution follows:

Whereas, a number of citizens of Atlanta living in other sections of the city have made statements to the press that reflect on the good name and standing of the community. Some having gone so far as to

SUICIDE VERDICT IN BAILEY DEATH

No Motive for Tragedy Advanced at Coroner's Inquest—Funeral Monday Afternoon.

H. Cochran Bailey, 55, whose lifeless body was found Saturday evening submerged in the waters of Brookhaven lake at the Capital City Country club, committed suicide, according to the findings of the coroner's jury at the inquest held over the body in the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son Sunday.

No reason could be advanced by friends or relatives why Mr. Bailey should kill himself. Apparently he was in good health, it is stated, and a short while before his body was found in the lake had been conversing jovially with several club members in the club cafe.

Mr. Bailey's body was discovered by two negro caddies, George Derricotte and Vanzoff Clements, about 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Dr. Harry Vaughn, who was playing golf near the scene at the time, was hurriedly summoned, and pronounced Mr. Bailey dead.

Mrs. Bailey was in Louisville, Ky., visiting her husband's mother, according to Albert H. Erwin, of 701 Highland avenue, a son-in-law of Mr. Bailey. Mr. Bailey was to have met her here Sunday on his return from a meeting of railroad agents in Savannah.

Funeral services will be conducted at the chapel of H. M. Patterson & Son at 3 o'clock Monday afternoon, and the body will be taken on the 5:25 train to Louisville, Ky., for burial.

Besides his wife, Mr. Bailey is survived by a daughter, Mrs. A. H. Erwin; his mother, Mrs. Susan H. Bailey, of Louisville, Ky., and three brothers, Dr. W. O., R. H. and R. O. Bailey, all of Louisville. Four grandchildren also survive him.

HERE'S NEW CAUSE FOR DIVORCE MANY MEN MIGHT PONDER

Chicago, November 19.—"Extreme sleepiness" was the alleged bit of masculine cruelty in which Mrs. Harriet W. White, of Roseland, sought a divorce from Cary White in superior court here.

White sleeps so long in the morning that he has no time for breakfast, and tumbles into bed on coming home at night without waiting for dinner, according to his spouse.

Her husband's sleepiness makes life a dull proposition for Mrs. White, who has to stay home nights, she asserts in the bill, as Roseland is "righteously and virtuously inclined" and looks with disfavor on women who journey out unaccompanied after 7 p. m.

AMERICAN ACTION AT NEAR EASTERN PARLEY IS LIKELY

Lausanne Conference Takes on World Prominence as U. S. Participation Is Indicated.

HAS VITAL INTEREST IN TURKISH PROBLEMS

U. S. Is Expected to Insist on Every Right of Participation Except Actual Voting.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Lausanne, November 19.—Indications tonight that the representatives of the United States government will take an active part in the Near Eastern conference, which will open tomorrow with a plenary session at the Lausanne casino, have suddenly given the conference great international importance. America will not only observe—she will speak, and speak vigorously when she thinks the occasion demands it, and in a general way will insist on every right of participation enjoyed by other countries in all things, except actual voting.

Such, the Associated Press understands, is the American position, and it is founded on the fact that the United States, like the European powers, possesses interests in Turkey and upon the American conviction that the United States can not sit idly by and allow other world nations to dispose of the future of the Turkish state without taking into consideration the views of the United States.

The American ambassador to Italy, Richard Washburn Child, and the American minister to Switzerland, Joseph C. Grew, plan to attend all the sessions of the conference, with Rear Admiral Bristol joining them later. The United States never declared war on Turkey and is not represented at Lausanne to take part in the revision of the treaty of Sevres, but she has a distinct interest in the question of the Turkish capitulations and the freedom of the straits.

Although it is too early to define the position of the United States on the various problems to be discussed at the conference, there seemed every prospect tonight that the American representatives, who lose their characterization of "observers," and become full-fledged delegates with the reservation above noted, will oppose any project to abandon the extra territorial privilege which permits foreigners to be tried in foreign courts in Turkey.

Position On Problems.

The American theory is said to be that the Turkish law is essentially based on religious tenets, to which foreigners, including Americans, do not subscribe, and that when the lives and property of Americans are involved it is only natural that they desire to retain these jurisditional exemptions already authorized either by tradition or by treaty.

When it comes to the taxation of foreigners or foreign property in Turkey, the impression prevails that the United States may advocate some modification of the existing exemption, in the belief that taxation exemption is tantamount to unjust discrimination against the Turkish manufacturer or merchant. America, it is said, may favor out and out abolition of this capitulation or privilege and recommend separate taxation arrangements with the various powers.

Concerning an increase in the Turkish customs tariff on imports and exports it is thought probable that the

FURTHER SERVICE RENDERED FUTILE BY LAST ELECTION

Defeat of Townsend Is Taken as Direct Cause for Decision of Stormy Petrel of Republicans.

BELIEVED POTTER WILL BE APPOINTED

Has Cheated Senate of Chance to Vindicate Itself by Firing Him, Caraway Declares.

Detroit, November 19.—Senator Truman H. Newberry, republican United States senator from Michigan, has resigned.

Faced with the prospect of undergoing further embarassment in the forthcoming session of congress because of the dispute over his seat, arising out of the large amount of money spent in his campaign against Henry Ford, Senator Newberry, on the advice of his friends, has stepped out. Late last week the senator announced that his seat was in the hands of his friends and that he would abide by their verdict.

In a letter dated November 18 Senator Newberry announced his resignation to Governor Alexander J. Groesbeck. The text in part of his letter is as follows:

Immediate Effect.

"I tender herewith my resignation as United States senator from Michigan to take immediate effect. I am impelled to take this action because at the recent election, notwithstanding his long and faithful service and strict adherence to the basic principles of constructive republicanism which I hold in common with him, Senator Townsend was defeated.

"This situation renders futile further service by me in the United States senate."

Senator Newberry refused to make any statement supplementary to his letter to Governor Groesbeck. He refused to see newspaper men and would not come to the telephone when called by the United News.

Comment Refused.

J. O. Murfin, widely known Michigan attorney who successfully defended Senator Newberry at his trial for alleged corruption of the electorate at Grand Rapids, also refused to comment on the resignation beyond confirming the fact that it had been tendered to Governor Groesbeck.

Following the recent defeat of Senator Townsend, which is supposed to have been directly responsible for Newberry's resignation Sunday, Murfin declared that he was "very sick" and that "the country is going to hell."

"My work in the senate," Newberry stated in his letter, "would continue to be hampered by partisan political persecution, and I, theref cheerfully return by commissio the people from whom I receive

"By direction of the democra ministration, there was begun ately upon my nomination ings before a specially selecte jury sitting in another state, by a vote of 16 to 1, complete erated those who conducted paign. Then followed my election with every issue which has since been raised clearly before the elecorate of the state. A recount was then demanded, and after a painstaking review of ballots by the United States senate, I was found to have received a substantial majority.

Faces Trial.

"While this was in progress, I was subjected by a large number of representative men of Michigan, who had supported me, to a trial following indictment procured by a democratic department of justice, which, through hundreds of agents, had hounded and terrified men in all parts of the state into believing that some wrong had been done. Under court instructions, convictions of conspiracy to spend more than $3,750 naturally followed. Sentences imposing fines and imprisonment were immediately passed, though all charges of bribery and corruption were quashed by specific order of the presiding judge.

"On appeal, the supreme court of the United States reversed the action of the court below, because, as stated by Chief Justice White, of the grave misapprehension and the grievous misapplication of the statute, which also was declared unconstitutional. A protracted investigation before the committee on privileges and elections in the senate, resulted in a report sustaining my eelction, and after a bitter partisan debate, the senate declared that I was entitled to my seat.

"In view of these proceedings, my right to my seat has been fully confirmed, and I am thankful I have been permitted to serve my state and country and to have the eternal satisfaction of having aided by my vote in keeping the United States out of the League of Nations. If, in the future, there seems to be opportunity for public service, I shall not hesitate to offer myself to the state which I love and the country I revere."

Resignation Predicted.

Senator Newberry's resignation had been predicted by many prominent Michigan politicians since the election of former Governor Ferris over Senator Townsend November 7, but it was tendered only at the last minute, when the entire country was wondering whether or not Newberry would leave for Washington Sunday to attend the special session of congress.

Newberry declared Saturday night that he was ready either to fight or quit, but that his course would be determined according to the decision of "friends who got me into this thing in the first place."

"As I have said before, I am not entirely a free agent in this thing," Newberry said. "The ones who got me into this are the ones I will consult before I make any further moves.

"Furthermore, I am not a politician, and don't know anything about politics. Neither was I the originator of a deep laid plot to defeat Henry Ford and the League of Nations and to corrupt the Michigan electorate.

"This has been a most distasteful four years, and no one can realize what my family has suffered."

May Name Potter.

William M. Potter, state fuel commissioner and a member of the public utilities commission, is the man most likely to be appointed to Newberry's seat by Governor Groesbeck, it is believed.

Groesbeck would not indicate his choice Sunday night, declaring that he wanted "a chance to look the situation over a little bit." He said, however, that he would appoint a successor to Newberry some time this week, so that Michigan would have full representation during the special session of congress.

Two days ago, it is reported on good authority, Groesbeck stated unofficially that Potter would probably be the successor of Newberry in case the latter resigned.

Senator Charles E. Townsend, although backed by many republican leaders for the seat, stands only an outside chance, it is understood. Next to Potter, the man nearest in line for the seat is thought to be Lieutenant-Governor Thomas Reed.

Suggestion of the possibility that Henry Ford might be selected was scoffed at on all sides, for although Ford was the defeated candidate in the contested election of Newberry, Groesbeck is a strong republican. Democratic leaders profess that Ford should now be appointed, but admit that there is little likelihood of it, while republican leaders laughed and told the United News there was "not a chance" for Ford.

COOLIDGE RECEIVES RESIGNATION NOTE.

Washington, November 19.—The resignation of Senator Truman H. Newberry, of Michigan, as tendered to Governor Groesbeck, was transmitted to Vice President Coolidge late Sunday, together with the request that "it be read into the records of the senate as soon as possible."

The announcement of Newberry's resignation brought forth expressions both of satisfaction and regret from senate leaders.

When informed by the United News of the resignation, Senator Borah, republican, who voted to unseat Newberry at the senate trial, declared: "I will let my vote speak for itself. There is really nothing more that I could say."

"I'm sorry he did it—awfully sorry," said Senator Caraway, of Arkansas. "He has cheated the senate of an opportunity to vindicate itself in the eyes of the nation.

"Newberry, by resigning, played the coward. He knew the new senate would unseat him, and he didn't have the courage to face the situation. However, his resigning relieves neither Newberry nor his friends of the stain of that purchased seat," he said.

CLEANER POLITICS SEEN BY FERRIS.

Big Rapids, Mich., November 19. The resignation of Senator Truman H. Newberry is the forerunner of an era of "cleaner politics" for the nation and has "saved the United States senate a lot of time and trouble," Senator-elect Woodbridge N. Ferris told the United News Sunday night.

Ferris, former democratic governor, who defeated Senator Charles E. Townsend in the elections and thus brought about Newberry's resignation, was probably the bitterest enemy of "Newberryism" in Michigan politics. During his campaign he promised the electorate that he would work vigorously for the unseating of Newberry, and following his election, announced that his first official action in the senate would be toward a reopening of Newberry's case.

"That's a fine thing all around," Ferris declared Sunday night. "It was not only the best thing Newberry could possibly have done, but it saved the United States senate a lot of time and bother. His case would have been reopened and, in my opinion, he would undoubtedly have been fired out of the senate, anyway.

Showed Great Wisdom.

"The senator showed great wisdom and I believe his statement to Governor Groesbeck that any attempt at further service in the senate by him would be 'futile' was absolutely correct. I don't see how he could have been of any further use to the senate.

"This resignation means cleaner politics for the entire country. It means that corruption has been defeated in the worst case of its sort in recent political history, and that the illegal use of great sums of money to buy elections has received a death blow. Furthermore, it is a repudiation of those senators who voted to seat Newberry.

"The only criticism I have of Newberry's action is that he should have resigned a long time ago, instead of posing as an innocent man and having the nerve to retain his seat until the voters of the state condemned him and until it was almost certain he would be fired out at the next regular session of the senate."

"MUCH PLEASED." SAYS G. O. P. CHIEF.

Chicago, November 19.—"I am very much pleased," Chairman Fred W. Upham, of the republican national committee, said Sunday night when advised by the United News of the resignation of Senator Truman H. Newberry.

While Upham was more inclined to sympathize with Newberry than with his enemies, on the ground that Newberry has obtained his senate seat in the same way that many other senators now in Washington secured theirs, he believed that Newberry's course in retaining the seat after his election had been questioned was "bad politics."

Upham declared that the Newberry issue had much to do with a number of republican casualties in the recent elections, and that the Michigan senator's resignation would go far to undo the damage to the party. If Newberry had resigned at the beginning, Upham thought, many of the results on November 7 would have been different.

DR. JOHN HOCKENHULL DIES IN CUMMING, GA.

Information was received in Atlanta Sunday of the death in Cumming, Ga., of Dr. John H. Hockenhull, one of the most prominent physicians of that section, who was widely known here, where he had visited relatives frequently.

Dr. Hockenhull was graduated from the old Atlanta medical college in the year 1886. Later he received degrees from the New York Polyclinic and other medical colleges of the country. He was reputed as one of the most capable surgeons in south Georgia.

For thirty years, Dr. Hockenhull was engaged in the practice of medicine with his father, the late Dr. John Hockenhull, at Cumming. His lineage dates back to the year 1650, to the English house of Hocken-Hull, his distinguished ancestors having taken a prominent part in early British diplomatic affairs.

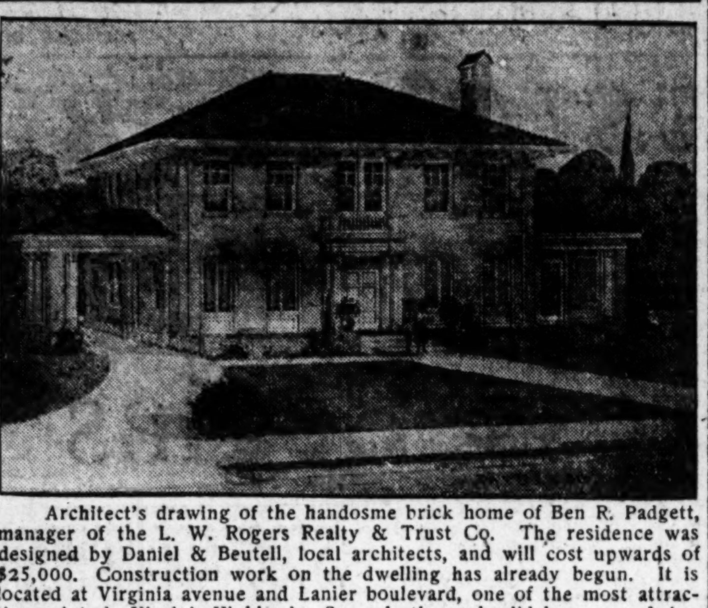
Besides his widow, Dr. Hockenhull is survived by three bothers, James P. and Alman G. Hockenhull, of Cumming, and Walter L. Hockenhull, of Atlanta, and two sisters, Mrs. Robert E. Andos and Mrs. Clifton Orr, of Atlanta.

Funeral services for Dr. Hockenhull will be conducted from the First Methodist church, at Cummings, at 11 o'clock Tuesday morning, the Rev. Dr. J. H. Eakes, presiding elder of the South Atlanta district, officiating.

Kiwanis Frolic.

Milledgeville, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—The Kiwanis club, of Milledgeville, had a "Ladies' Nite" Friday evening. All members, their wives and sweethearts a ssembled in mask in the Y. M. C. A. hut. Stunts and frolics were the amusements of the evening. Nothing was served but home-grown "eats."

Handsome New Residence



Architect's drawing of the handosme brick home of Ben R. Padgett, manager of the L. W. Rogers Realty & Trust Co. The residence was designed by Daniel & Beutell, local architects, and will cost upwards of $25,000. Construction work on the dwelling has already begun. It is located at Virginia avenue and Lanier boulevard, one of the most attractive points in Virginia Highlands. Several other splendid homes are being built in Virginia Highlands by prominent Atlantans.

History of Newberry Case

Washington, November 19.—Resignation of Truman H. Newberry, as United States senator from Michigan, is put down here as a direct result of the recent election, in which most of the senators who voted for him and ran for re-election were defeated.

The incoming senate contained a majority committee to vote for ousting of Newberry in event his case should come up. In his own state he was the issue, and the veteran, Senator Townsend, who defended Newberry, was defeated. Woodbridge N. Ferris, the successful democratic senatorial candidate, declared immediately after the election that the first thing he would do when he was sworn in would be to reopen the Newberry case.

The Newberry case was an issue in every state where a senator who had voted to seat him was up for re-election. Most of these senators fell by the wayside. Nine of these thirteen senators were beaten either in the primaries or in the election. New, of Indiana, and McCumber, of North Dakota, went down in the primaries. Pro-Newberry senators defeated in the election were Calder, New York; Frelinghuysen, New Jersey; France, Maryland; DuPont, Delaware; Kellogg, Minnesota; Poindexter, Washington, and Townsend, Michigan.

Cutting Attacks.

Newberry was the subject of the most cutting attacks by democratic senators, both on the senate floor and on the stump. They loudly demanded that Newberry resign. But the Michigan senator kept a screen of complete silence over himself. He refused to take the senate floor in his own defense except to read a brief, prepared statement. After his vindication, numerous republican senators who were up for re-election and feared the Newberry issue would prove embarrassing to them privately expressed the hope that he would resign. But he hung on and then came the casualty lists after the election. It was apparent to him that he would be voted out of the senate should his case be reopened.

"The country has gone to hell," his political manager said in reading the complete returns.

Elected in 1918.

Newberry was elected to the senate in November, 1918, defeating Henry Ford, the democratic nominee. Shortly thereafter, indictments were handed down by the federal grand jury at Grand Rapids against Newberry and more than 100 of his political aides on charges of conspiracy to violate the election laws in the primary campaign preceding the general election. This grew out of the use of large sums of money by Newberry in an effort to defeat Ford, who, with Newberry, was a candidate for the republican senatorial nomination.

Newberry and a large number of the other defendants were convicted. In the meantime a contest was started by Ford against Newberry's right to his seat in the senate, on the grounds that there had been irregularities in the election, and that Ford, as a result, had been deprived of votes belonging to him. Newberry retorted with counter-charges of irregularities by Ford workers, and the whole question, including the expenditure of Newberry money in the primary, was put before a senate investigating committee.

Because of the pendency of Newberry's appeal from his convicton, and for other reasons, the senate investigation dragged along for a couple of years. Finally the United States supreme court decided that the portion of the federal corrupt practices act under which Newberry was convicted was unconstitutional. That resulted in the conviction being set aside.

Recount of Ballots.

The senate committee then ordered a recount of the ballots in the general election, and found that Newberry had received a legal plurality of the votes cast. On the question of the expenditures of money in the primary campaign, the committee divided sharply. Republican members, representing the majority of the committee, reported that though more than $200,000 was spent in campaign expenses, it was spent without Newberry's knowledge or consent; that Newberry, who was at the time chief personnel officer of the New York naval district, had not been in Michigan during the campaign and took no part in it, and that for these reasons he was guiltless and entitled to his seat.

The minority set forth that Newberry had been warned by republican friend that the expenditure of money in his behalf was becoming a public scandal; that he had been advised in various ways of the amounts being used, and that he had a hand in directing the campaign. He was not entitled to his sat, the minority averred.

After a bitter fight in the senate, Newberry was seated by a vote of 46 to 41, but only after the majority report and accompanying resolution had been amended to condemn the use of such sums as were spent in behalf of Newberry. This amendment won the votes of enough republican senators to seat Newberry.

Several times during the long contest, Newberry was urged to resign. He invariably said that, having been legally elected by the people of Michigan, he could not resign without proving false to the mandate given him by his constituents.

Hughes Takes Part.

When Newberry was under heaviest fire during the recent campaign Secretary of State Hughes, who, as a private attorney, argued Newberry's case before the supreme court, issued an open letter giving the Mihcigan senator a clean bill of mealth. This document drew hot fire from the democrats, and added to the bitterness of the wrangling over Newberry.

For many months, while his case was pending in the senate, Newberry, while technically retaining his seat, never ventured into the senate chamber. He went to his office in the senate office building regularly and attended to the requests of his constituents. He was paired with a democratic senator so that the effect of his absence was cancelled, while he was able at the same time to avoid the embarrassment of appearing on the senate floor.

HARDING NAMES EDUCATION WEEK

a time when public burdens have lain very heavy upon the people, there has been everywhere a determined purpose to maintain education unimpaired in order that the coming generation may be equipped regardless of sacrifices in the present, for the increasing responsibilities which it must bear.

"Without vision the people perish."

"Without education, there can be little vision. Of education it may be said that it is twice blest, it blesseth him that gives and him that takes. It will be greatly worth the effort, if, as an incident to the observance of education week, we can impress this upon the young manhood and womanhood of the nation and redirect their interest and patriotic zeal to the idea of making a proper contribution to educational work. It is regrettable that so few young men and women, equipped for such service, are nowadays disposed to give their time and talents to teachings. Education needs their youth, eagerness, zeal and enthusiasm. There is no school of discipline more effective than that in which the teacher goes to school. We could do no greater service than by convincing those young men and women who have enjoyed educational opportunities that they owe a reasonable share of their time and energies to teaching.

Strength of Nation.

"The strength and security of the nation will always rest in the intelligent body of its people. Our education should implant conceptions of public duty and private obligation broad enough to envisage the problems of a greatly distraught world. More than anything else, men and women, need the capacity to see with clear eye and to contemplate with open, unprejudiced mind, the issues of these times. Only through a properly motivated and generalously inspired process of education can this be accomplished.

"In vitw, then, of these and many other considerations, I hereby proclaim the week of December 3-9 as American Education week, recommending to the appropriate national, state and local authorities that they give their cordial support and co-operation to making its observance inspirant and beneficial. Civic organizations and religious bodies may render special service by their co-operation; and particularly it is recommended that parents enlist themselves in behalf of closer understanding between the supreme court and the home, with the purpose of mutual helpfulness.

"In consideration and witness thereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the capitol, in Washington, this twentieth day of November, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and twenty-two, and of the independence of the United States the hundred and forty-seventh.

"WARREN G. HARDING."

AMERICAN ACTION IN PARLEY IS LIKELY

United States might indorse an international agreement the same as was worked out for China at the Washington conference. On the customs question the United States apparently shows no intention to act alone, but in the closest harmony with the other great powers.

Would Welcome Action.

It is recalled that on September 10, 1914, the state department at Washington was officially informed by the Ottoman government of its intention to abrogate all capitulations beginning October 1, but that the American ambassador to Constantinople was instructed to notify the Turkish government that the United States could not acquiesce in this and could not recognize Turkish right to abolish privileges previously accorded.

The intention of the American delegates to assume an active role seems not to be generally known in Lausanne today, but the European powers would undoubtedly welcome American activity, as compared with American aloofness at the Genoa and the Hague conferences.

The weight of America's word, it is expected, will be regarded as greatly affecting the course of the deliberations, all the more so since it is deemed that America is without prejudice.

MUSSOLINI DECLINES TO MAKE TRIP.

Territet, Switzerland, November 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Mussolini, Italy's fascisti premier, this afternoon flatly refused the request of Premier Poincare and Lord Curzon, which reached him here by telephone, to proceed to Lausanne and ocnfer there with the French and British statesmen, and, perforce, M. Poincare and Lord Curzon, who had alighted from their special train at Lausanne, got aboard again and came to Territet.

They dined with Mussolini at the Grand Hotel des Alpes, and later, over their coffee, discussed the entente's program for the Near East conference.

Arrangements had been made to serve this entente dinner in Lord Curzon's hotel near Lausanne, where the American delegates are lodged. When the special train bearing M. Poincare and Lord Curzon from Paris arrived at Lausanne the ministers started for their quarters where the secretaries telephoned to Territet urging the Italian premier to come to Ouchy by automobile but Mussolini declined, replying that this was impossible.

This was Mussolini's first demonstration of Italian independence and the French and British leaders bowed to it. The story also went around that Mussolini has disliked to travel in Switzerland since the day he was expelled from that country. The ban of expulsion was officially lifted only the week before the fascisti leader became premier.

Insist On Equality.

Tonight's conference was aimed at securing unity of front, and it indicated that Italy insists upon complete equality with France and Great Britain. The "big three" dinner was so informal that somebody labelled it "black shirt diplomacy." It was served in the simplest manner in the main dining room and the hotel guests dining at nearby tables had a close-up of the three statesmen, who, wearing sack suits, ate their meals leisurely.

Mussolini met Poincare and Curzon at the station and welcomed them cordially. He explained that he preferred not to go to Lausanne as he was convinced the first meeting should be held at a place not influenced by the conference atmosphere. He agreed, however, to proceed to Lausanne on the ministerial special leaving at 10:45 and spend the night there and continue the conversations.

The first interview was said to have been entirely satisfactory. The three ministers are understood to have adopted a common resolution to treat all questions to be submitted in the conference on a basis of most cordial friendship and perfect allied equality.

SPECIAL CONGRESS SESSION BEGINS TODAY

lican, both for the short and long terms. Senator-elect Brookhart, republican, Iowa, who succeeds Senator Rawson, is not expected to present his credentials until later.

Both senate and house will settle down to work after the president's address Tuesday, the house to fight out the ship subsidy bill which leaders plan to bring to a vote November 29, and the senate to take up unfinished and miscellaneous business, of which the administration bill to lend $5,000,000 to Liberia has the right-of-way.

Many Nominations.

A large number of presidential nominations are to be transmitted to the senate early this week with supreme court and federal reserve board vacancies among the most important to be filled. Scores of postmasters and other federal officials also are to be named.

Action of the republican progressives or "irregulars" promises to be of unusual interest in the coming deliberations of congress, especially in view of the call of Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, for formal conferences December 1 and 2 preceding the regular session of congress.

The bulk of members of both senate and house are on hand for tomorrow's opening. Vice President Coolidge and Speaker Gillett are on hand, with Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, and Representative Mondell, of Wyoming, republican leaders of the senate and house respectively. Senator Underwood, of Alabama, democratic leader, was detained at home by ilness but is to arrive soon to close his term as leader, having announced that he would not be a candidate for the minority leadership in the next congress.

The new session will be a record-breaker in at least one aspect, as it insures an unprecedented number of sessions of a single congress. With the extra session called in April, 1921, the regular session ended last September, the extra session convening tomorow and the regular December session, the 67th congress will have made history, in progres four sessions. None before ever had more than three.

BY RAYMOND CLAPPER,
United News Staff Correspondent.

Washington, November 19.—President Harding now faces the most critical three months of his entire administration. With the assembling of congress on Monday, Harding's control of Capitol Hill enters its last phase. He now has his last chance to complete the outstanding legislation on which the party will appeal to the country in the 1924 campaign.

Administration forces will be in control of congress until March 4. After that white house measures will have to take their chances in congress for the new group of progressives and independents will hold the balance of power. Harding will then have to reckon with this group continuously.

Legislative Program.

The administration has outlined the following legislation program to be enacted by March 4:

1. Ship subsidy.
2. Regular annual appropriation bills—a dozen of them.
3. Dyer anti-lynching measurers.
4. Rural credits relief.
5. Five million dollar loan to Liberia.
6. Remedial coal legislation to be recommended by the presidential coal commission.

But even with the tremendous republican majorities that still exist in the old congress, Harding faces the following difficulties:

1. Middle-western senators and congressmen are determined to kill the ship-subsidy bill. It may pass the house but will probably fail in the senate.

Election Post-Mortems.

2. Election post-mortems. There being no way of gagging senators, democrats expect to consume considerable time on the floor telling the country what they think the recent elections meant.

3. Opposition of Senator Borah and other progressives to Liberian loan measure. They claim it is a scheme to reimburse New York bankers for losses sustained in financing the Liberian republic.

4. The attempt to impeach Attorney-General Daugherty will be renewed by Congressman Woodruff, republican, of Michigan.

5. Efforts to re-open the bonus question. Congressman Britton will propose coupling beer and light wine legislation with the bonus.

Storm Brewing.

Some of these questions will be nothing but time-consuming efforts. There is a large element in the present congress which has only one object: To stall for time, prevent enactment of the regular appropriation bills by March 4, and force Harding to call the new congress into session in the spring. That object will provide the explanation for many otherwise puzzling episodes at the capitol during the next few weeks.

Overshadowing the whole scene is the activity of the La Follette-Borah progressives. Much organizing is going on. Rival factions among the progressives and independents are striving for leadership, each bent on forwarding some pet project. Some are dry and some are wet. There are personal jealousies.

But so far as the present congress is concerned, this group will possess no diresct power, except through such dilatory tactics as it can employ.

Constitution Bureau,
Raleigh Hotel.

Washington, November 19.—(By Constitution Leased Wire.)—Senator-elect Walter F. George, of Georgia, arrived at the capital today prepared to assume his duties upon the convention of congress. He was accompanied by Mrs. George, his secretarial force and a number of friends from the state, who made the trip to see the new senator sworn in.

It is not known yet whether Mr. George will formally take office Monday, due to the undecided status of Mrs. Felton's case. If the Georgia woman's credentials as the ad interim appointee to succed the late Senator Watson are accepted, she will probably be permitted to serve for the day, Judge George holding over until Tuesday.

Mrs. Felton, supported by a large number of representatives of various woman's organizations, let it be known tonight that she will demand her seat when the session opens at noon tomorrow. She was in conference tonight with Senator Borah and other members of the senate, discussing the various obstacles that may arise. If Mrs. Felton is permitted to take her seat, she will immediately demand the privilege of the floor and "have my say," she declared today, explaining that she expected to address the body for a few minutes, if possible, should she be sworn in. No objection to this plan is anticipated.

To Honor Watson.

The program for the senate on Monday calls for adjournment out of respect to the memory of the late Senator Watson, who died shortly after the session ended, and will be effected through a resolution to be offered by Senator Harris, of Georgia, after routine matters have been disposed of.

Ever since Mrs. Felton's arrival Saturday she has been swamped with visitors, all bent on seeing the first woman senator in the United States. Numerous invitations have been extended her to address different women's organizations, all of which she has declined, due to the strenuous journey from Georgia, which she made alone. Her son, Dr. Howard Felton, of Cartersville, arrived today and will accompany her home within a few days.

At the capitol tomorrow, Mrs. Felton will be presented with a basket of eighty-seven American Beauty roses by the woman's division of the democratic central committee of the District of Columbia. When informed of the plans to present her the flowers, she said:

"Good heavens, child. How will I ever get home with them? I've got more at home now than I know what to do with, but bring them along—they'll be pretty to look at, anyway."

STOCKADE SCHOOL SITE IS INDORSED

say that the environment of our community was such that they would not send their children here to school, and,

Whereas, charges and statements of this character tend to bring about factional and sectional feeling among the people of Atlanta; and,

Whereas, as this community is made up of law abiding and God-fearing citizens of as high ideals as of any other community in the city of Atlanta, and

Whereas, said criticisms are made for the purpose of intimidating constituted authorities who have selected the site for the Girls' High school.

Therefore be it resolved, by the members of congregations named below, that the Board of Education, the Bond Commission and city council be and are hereby commended for their wise and courageous selection of the Rosalia street site for the Girls' High school. Be it further resolved that we deplore the unjust criticism that has been directed at this community, which we believe was done through ignorance of the true facts and conditions. Be it further resolved that the newspapers of Atlanta be requested to give the same publication to these resolutions as they have to the statements referred to.

Congregations passing the resolution were: Apostolic Tabernacle, Beulah Heights Bible institute, Ormewood Christian Endeavor society, Elise Memorial Baptist church, East Atlanta Baptist, Grant Park Methodist, Ormewood Park Presbyterian, Martha Brown Memorial, Woodward Avenue Baptist and the Cherokee Avenue Seventh-day Adventist churches.

Attack Made on Critics.

An attack upon the motives of those responsible for the statements reflecting upon the neighborhood near the stockade site was made by Rev. Edgar G. Thompson, pastor of the Martha Brown Memorial church, of East Atlanta.

"Those of you who have heard me preach for the past two years," Rev. Mr. Thompson declared in opening his sermon, "know that I am not given to criticising our city and muckraking its places of sin by parading its shortcomings before the wrold.

"I contend that the people who are opposing what the authorities are doing in regard to the location of the new girls' high school are all wrong. If I understand the bond election, it was fully agreed that one of these high schools was to be on the north side and the other on the south side. The center of the city was never considered. Nor did I understand that both were to be in one section.

"The objection to the site is made only upon the hue and cry raised that the earth is contaminated because it is the stockade site. We might as well object to building a temple on Golgotha's heights or refuse to let our daughters take a music lesson in a conservatory because a saloon once stood on the site. Nothing but a superstitious mind can conjure up such objections.

Did Not Protest.

"We of the south side did not raise our voice when the Boys' High site was selected. Do these folks want to cry down every south side selection, as they have done in every instance, in order that only a north side site will remain?

"Do they mean to say that the south side is below their social standing and that we must cast our votes for bonds to give the 'Hemlock section' all improvements provided for our city in the bond issue?

"Those responsible for this opposition, it seems to me, are cultivating a sectional strife that will not be easy to overcome. If the selection of this site is tampered with, it is my opinion that it will be a long, long time before the south and eastern sections of our city will support any other improvements, for in so doing they are violating the promises by which we went to the polls and aided in passing the present bond issue."

Council Will Act.

John S. McClelland, leader in the south side advocates of the school site, confidently predicted Sunday night that the matter will be settled at Monday's meeting of council.

It is expected that the school board will make a report to city council, accepting the tender of the stockade property, made several months ago. Should council approve the report, the matter will be finally settled, according to Mr. McClelland.

Opponents of the site, however, predict that a majority of council will vote against accepting the report of the board of education. They claim that the motion will be tabled and that a resolution, submitting the problem to the people for final decision, will be passed.

Missionary Society Meets.

The Missionary Society of First Methodist will meet at the church Monday, 3 p. m. Dr. F. C. Howard will have charge of the Bible study class. Mrs. Ben Conyers will have charge of the mite boxes.

The "William P. Frye," a sailing vessel, was the first American ship sunk in the world war.

W. D. KILPATRICK LECTURES SUNDAY

Member of Christian Science Lecture Board Speaks at the Rialto Theater.

William D. Kilpatrick, member of the Christian Science board of lectureship, delivered a lecture on "The Religion of Christian Science" at the Rialto theater Sunday afternoon.

Mr. Kilpatrick's lecture, in part, follows:

"Christian Science is primarily and exclusively the religion of Jesus the Christ. It is a return to the teachings of primitive Christianity and as such it must necessarily include the practice of healing which exemplified the life, not only of Jesus, but the lives, as well, of many of the early Christians, even the lives of those who had never been taught of Jesus. We have been prone to think that the healing of the sick, the maimed, the halt and the blind by Jesus and by his disciples and apostles was the outcome or result of a special dispensation from God to Jesus which was, in turn, passed along by him to his followers in some mysterious or occult manner. That is, we have been taught to believe that the healing works accomplished by Jesus were the manifestations of a superhuman power with which Jesus was especially endowed to distinguish him from the rest of mankind; that this power was something mysterious and that it is in no wise the heritage of all who obey God.

"This is a very erroneous concept of Jesus and of the import of his holy mission, and it is a concept which has robbed Christianity of the very essence of that for which Jesus struggled and for which he permitted his crucifixion. In this mistaken concept, that the power to heal the sick and to raise the dead by spiritual means alone ended on the cross, do we find the blighting limitation from which Christianity must be freed. This wrong concept, that spiritual healing was a special dispensation from God bestowed upon Jesus alone and for a limited period of time, has for centuries deprived mankind of those wonderful blessings which Christian Science has come to restore.

"Jesus did not heal the sick, walk the waves, multiply the loaves and fishes, raise the dead and many other wonderful things simply for the gratification of the multitude; nor were those works done for the mere purpose of showing mankind what he personally could do. He did these things to show to the world, to you and to me, what are the fruits of a right understanding of God and man's relation of God. He did these works to show humanity what it means to be a true Christian. Jesus said:

"'These signs shall follow them that believe; in my name shall they cast out devils; they shall speak with new tongues; they shall take up serpents; and if they drink any deadly thing it shall not hurt them; they shall lay hands on the sick and they sall recover.'

"What Jesus accomplished by way of healing and saving was the positive result of his mental application of a scientific principle. Jesus was the only truly scientific man who ever lived and he scarcely uttered a word or accomplished a deed that was not in direct opposition to what we have always conceived to be physically or materially scientific. In other words, Jesus completely disregarded and nullified, through those works which he accomplished, every so-called scientific principle based upon materiality, or matter, of which you and I have any knowledge, showing conclusively that God does not operate through material law and that the law of God, when scientifically and intelligently applied, is one of annihilation to the so-called laws of matter, or of evil."

NO FURTHER DELAY IN TRIAL OF CATTS

Pensacola, Fla., November 19.—No furher delay was expected tonight in the case of former Governor Sidney J. Catts, whose trial on two indictments charging peonage is set for federal court here tomorrow.

The court yesterday disposed of a case that had been holding up the former governor's trial since Thursday and preparations were immediately made for the selection of a jury to try Catts tomorrow.

Catts, former minister and governor of Florida, 1917-1920, inclusive, and stormy petrel of Florida politics from late 1915 until his retirement from the statehouse, is charged with having forced two negroes, pardoned from the state prison, to work against their will on his plantation in Walton county during 1920.

ARMING MARHRT IS INELIGIBLE TO PLAY

Morgantown, W. Va., November 19. Arming Mahrt, the great halfback of the West Virginia university football team, has been declared ineligible, the athletic committee announced today.

The decision was made after university authorities officially decided that the University of Dayton, where Mahrt played last year, is classed as a college and not a preparatory school. Mahrt played on the Phillips Andover academy team before going to the Dayton institution.

West Virginia has not lost a game this season and is to play Washington and Jefferson at Morgantown Thanksgiving day.

Mahrt's offensive play and kicking were important factors in the Mountaineers's success this season.

Freeing Convict To Kill Official Laid to Governor

"Charge Is Dastardly Lie," Declares Oklahoma Executive.

Oklahoma City, Okla., November 19.—Branding as a "dastardly and damnable lie" charges filed in district court at Okmulgee, Okla., last night, against Governor J. B. A. Robertson, alleging that he released a murder convict from the state penitentiary "to kill the county attorney of Okmulgee county," the chief executive today said he could not believe a public official could "stoop so low" as to make the charge.

District Judge Thomas A. Edwards, of Cordell, is scheduled to hear the charges here tomorrow when, at the direction of the state supreme court, he will review the change of venue granted Governor Robertson by District Judge Lucien B. Wright, Friday, in the case in which the state's chief executive is charged with having accepted a bribe to allow a defunct Okmulgee bank to continue in operation.

The charge was made in a petition filed by James Hepburn, county attorney, asking that the change of venue granted in the bribery case against the governor here Friday be set aside. District Judge Wright set the case for trial at Ada, Okla., next Wednesday.

"While the county attorney of Okmulgee county has been actuated throughout in the handling of the charges against me by the most vicious and bitter animosity and personal enmity that has ever characterized the course of a public official in this state," the governor said in today's statement, "I cannot believe that he has stooped so low as to use the privilege of his high office to make a charge against me.

"I hesitate to believe that such assertions and charges are embodied in the motion," said the governor in his statement.

"If the motion contains an allegation that I paroled a prisoner, to kill the county attorney of Okmulgee county, it could have no effect upon the proceedings involving the transfer of the charges against me to the district court at Ada. Therefore, I am inclined to believe there must be some error in the report.

"If the report is true that such an allegation is made, I can only say that it is a dastardly and damnable lie and is made at this time for the sole purpose of trying to create public sentiment against me on the eve of my case going to trial at Ada."

PROGRESSIVES ALTER PLANS FOR MEETING

To Call National Gathering at Cleveland on December 11.

Washington, November 19.—Members of the national executive board of the conference for progressive political action, most of whom are officers of railroad labor organizations, decided at a meeting here today to issue a call for a national gathering of their associates to be held in Cleveland, December 11. Original plans were for a session of the larger body at Chicago, but W. H. Johnston, chairman of the council, said after today's meeting that the Ohio city would prove more convenient.

The executive board which began sessions yesterday, did not complete its work today, Mr. Johnston said, and would reserve the issuance of its call until tomorrow. A large number of persons from various sections of the United States, it was said, will be asked to attend the Cleveland session, which will consider the best methods of making effective the political ideas held by the group.

Though the conference is in general sympathy with the program announced by Senator La Follette, republican, Wisconsin, and Representative Huddleston, democrat, Alabama, for creation of a progressive "bloc" in congress, Mr. Johnston said there was no direct connection between the two movements.

His Wife Present, Windsor Shoots Garage Operator

Quarrel Over Charge for Repairing Automobile Declared Cause.

Harry Smith, 35, operator of an automobile repair garage at Gilmore's station on the Marietta car line and just inside Cobb county, was shot twice through the chest and perhaps fatally wounded late Sunday afternoon by R. W. Windsor.

The wounded man was rushed to Nolan's sanitarium in Marietta where surgeons say his condition is critical. Windsor made his escape following the shooting and had not been apprehended at a late hour Sunday night. Both men are married.

According to Sheriff W. E. Swanson, of Cobb county, the trouble arose over charges Smith made for repairing Windsor's automobile. Windsor's wife and children were present at the time of the shooting.

Sheriff Swanson has asked Atlanta police to assist in apprehending Windsor.

Pacific Coast Tie.

San Francisco, November 19.—Oregon's 10 to 0 victory over the Oregon Aggies Saturday sent them into a tie with the champion California eleven for first place in the Pacific coast conference table. Each team has won three games and lost none. They do not meet this year.

DIXIE CONGRESS WILL OPEN TODAY

Prominent Speakers of All Nations on Program of the Three-Day Meet at Chicago.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

Chicago, November 19.—Addresses by Senator John K. Shields of Tennessee on "Our Changing Constitution" and by Major General John F. O'Ryan on "The Maintenance of World Peace" will mark the opening session of the Southern Commercial congress here tomorrow.

Dr. Clarence J. Owens, president of the congress, will review its activities and achievements during the last year.

The Southern Commercial congress was originally founded at Augusta, Ga., in 1837, but was disrupted at the outbreak of the civil war and did not resume its activities until fifteen years ago.

Ambassadors, ministers and consuls of many foreign governments are on the program of this year's three-day convention. Thursday, 125 of the delegates, representing business interests in many parts of the country, will leave for Mexico City on a commercial mission. They will return to Chicago December 5.

Speakers On Monday.

Speakers at the afternoon session tomorrow include Jacob M. Dickinson, former secretary of war, and Julius Rosenwald, both of Chicago, Governor Len Small of Illinois, Senator Shields, General O'Ryan and Mr. Owens.

Tomorrow night a conference of consular representatives of foreign countries will be held. Speakers include Horace Nugent, British consul general; Antonin Barthelmy, French consul to Chicago; B. Singer, consul general of Nicaragua; Dr. Albert H. Putney, honorary consul of Persia; R. Bauman, Danish consul; Sygmunt Nowicki, Polish consul; Ralph Metcalf, of the international trade commission, and Dr. Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago.

Tuesday, Dr. Otto Wiedfeldt, German ambassador to the United States, will discuss trade relations between the two countries. Senor Don Frederico Alfonso Pezet, Peruvian ambassador, is to speak on barriers to direct trade relations between the Americas. Other speakers include Don Rafael H. Elizalde, minister of Ecuador; Dr. Bedrich Stepanek, Czecho-Slovakian minister; Senor Adolofo, Bolivian minister; Stephan Panaretoff, Bulgarian minister; Axel Leonard Astrom, minister from Finland, and Soterios Nicholson, former counsel of the Greek legation.

Dial On Program.

At the afternoon session Tuesday Senator N. B. Dial, of South Carolina, will speak on the "Injustice of the Present Future Cotton Contract law;" Congressman Adolph J. Sabath, of Chicago, will discuss immigration and the position of the foreign-born citizen in this country, and the Chevalier Gugliemo Silenzi, Italian consul, will speak on immigration from south Europe to the southern states. Other speakers at the afternoon session include Colonel F. L. Williamson, of North Carolina; Joseph T. Brownlee, of Tennessee; Louis S. Gottlieb, of Washington, D. C.; Senator John W. Harreld, of Oklahoma, and Major-General George C. Rickards, U. S. A.

The Tuesday night session will be devoted to an agricultural conference, with addresses on farm credit, financing and crop distribution problems of the south. The speakers include Carl Vrooman, former assistant secretary of agriculture; C. P. Norgord, of Wisconsin, president of the National Association of Departments of Agriculture; Herbert Quick, former member of the federal farm loan board; J. C. Mohler, secretary of the Kansas department of agriculture, and Boris Aronow, who will discuss the effect of foreign exchange on exportation of American crops.

Transportation Problems.

Wednesday morning John C. Ruge, director of the Mississippi Valley association, will speak on "Linking the Atlantic Ocean with the Mississippi River," and Edward Giannini on "Italian-American Commerical Relations." Following addresses by Thomas F. Rigg, president of the American Poultry association; John Lind, of the Prepared Roofing association: W. B. Hooper, of Sullivan, Ill., and W. T. McCowan, of Fayetteville, Tenn., two Chicago problems, "Linking Chicago to the Atlantic Ocean," and "Retention of the Great Lakes Naval Training Station" will be discussed.

Transportation and intersectional social relations are on the program for the Wednesday afternoon session.

The congress will close Wednesday night with a banquet, at which the speakers include Governor Samuel R. McKelvie, of Nebraska; Governor Albert E. Ritchie, of Maryland; Governor E. Lee Trinkle, of Virginia; Jacob M. Dickinson and Ambassador Pezt, of Peru.

AVIATORS HURT BY PLANE CRASH IN MACON SUNDAY

Macon, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Daisy Churchwell, Macon lawyer and former army aviator, and Max Ramsey, a brother of Alderman J. W. Ramsey, were painfully injured here this afternoon when a Curtiss plane in which Churchwell was attempting to make a landing at Central City park failed to pick up speed on a turn and crashed into the ground.

Both young men were rescued from the wreckage of the machine and taken to the hospital, where examination showed their injuries not to be serious.

Witnesses said that Churchwell was flying too low while attempting to make a turn prior to making a landing and the machine struck an air pocket. The nose of the machine crashed into the river levee, which was all that saved the two young men from a bath in the Ocmulgee.

A large number of tourists and Macon people who were at the park witnessed the accident and assisted in rescuing the young men. The plane, which was the property of Mr. Churchwell, was badly damaged, but can be repaired.

POLICEMAN IS HELD ON SHOOTING CHARGE

Savannah, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—A. L. Jiles, a member of the Savannah police force, is held here for the Effingham county authorities on a charge of shooting Lawrence Mitchell, a printer, through the neck near Guyton, Ga. The shooting, the officer declares, was in self-defense. The trouble between the men is said to have started when Jiles became involved in a family affair—trouble in which an Effingham county man is said to have beaten up his wife.

Jiles declares that all the parties to the trouble were drinking and that he had no hand in the affair, but that when Mitchell assailed him he fired on him. Mitchell is in a serious condition in a hospital in Savannah.

"Lightnin' Bill" Makes Last Bow Before Curtain

Frank Bacon, Actor and Playwright, Passes to Reward.

Chicago, November 19.—Frank Bacon, age 58, one of the most widely known actors on the American stage as the result of his success in the part of "Bill Jones" in "Lightin'," which he helped to write, died at his hotel here today.

After four and one half years in the role, Bacon was compelled by illness to retire from the cast of the play a week ago. He had been suffering from arterial sclerosis for some time, but declared he was "just tired" and would resume his work in two weeks.

Accompanied by his wife and daughter, Mrs. Mathew Allen, he was taken to a hotel, in the hope that he would rally sufficiently to be moved to his home in the east. With the cheerful optimism which characterized the part of "Lightnin' Bill Jones," which he created in the play, he insisted that he would soon be out although he became steadily weaker.

Suffers Stroke.

Saturday morning he suffered a heart attack and fell into a coma from which he never rallied, his death taking place shortly after 9 o'clock this morning. He is survived by his widow, daughter and a son, Lloyd, of Los Angeles. The funeral services will be held here Wednesday and the body will be removed later to his birthplace at Marysville, Cal. He left school when he was 14 years old, becoming successively a sheep herder, an advertising solicitor, newspaper editor, candidate for the California assembly. Defeated in his aspirations for political honors, he turned to the stage, joining a stock company in San Jose. His first role was that of "Switchell" in "Ten Night in a Bar Room." After the San Francisco fire he went to New York and appeared in "The Fortune Hunter," "Stop Thief," "The Cinderella Man," and "Lightnin'."

Mr. Bacon's greatest success was in the rale of "Lightnin' Bill Jones," a part in which he appeared more than 2,000 times in the past five years. He had collaborated with Winchell Smith in the writing of the play which ran for three years in New York and nearly a year and a half here.

Was "So Tired."

Worn down by the steady grind, Mr. Bacon had been under a physician's care for some time before he was finally prevailed on to take a rest. But there was nothing in his last performance a week ago Saturday, to indicate his illness. Perhaps he drew his hand across his wrinkled brow a little more realistically; perhaps the break in his voice was just a trifle more real.

"Are you all right," he was asked by his wife after the curtain fell.

"Yes, yes," replied Mr. Bacon. "I'm all right, but, oh, I'm so tired."

UKRAINIAN CHORUS LAUDED BY CRITICS

Advance Seat Sale for Engagement Continues at Cable Hall.

The Ukrainian National chorus, which will appear in Atlanta November 29 under the auspices of the Atlanta Music Festival association, has been lauded by music critics from coast to coast.

The critic in the New York Herald, speaking of Alexander Kashetz, who conducts the chorus, said: "He takes hold of them by a wide or small gesture, he awakens them, then unchains them, he rocks them to sleep, he makes them gush out—he makes them die. In that there is genius."

The seat sale for the choral attraction will continue at Cable hall throughout the week. Officials of the festival association say the sale has been most satisfactory and that those who desire the best seats must make their reservations this week in order to be accommodated. The balcony seats are listed at popular prices, and owing to a recent action of the festival association officials, seat prices in the dress circle, boxes and the arena have been reduced. The prices range from $1 to $2.

DR. ALEXANDER SPEAKS TO FATHERS AND SONS

The father and son meeting that was held at the colored branch of the Y. M. C. A. yesterday afternoon was largely attended. The address by Dr. Alexander on "The Things That I Would Do If I Were a Young Colored Boy," was well delivered, and the entire audience of both boys and grownups gave the closest attention to the thought advanced. The speaker admonished the boys to first get the idea of God well fixed in their minds, and let that be the foundation upon which to build a life for service. "Seek the companionship of good boys, and shun evil companions, if you ever hope to fill your rightful places in the world," he advised.

CHINESE OFFICIAL ARRESTED FOR FRAUD

Peking, November 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Le Wen-Kan, minister of finance, was arrested today on a warrant issued at the request of President Li Yuan-Hung, charged with receiving a commission for the proposed flotation of a loan of six million pounds sterling by a group of German and Austrian financiers prior to the world war.

AUTHORITIES SEEK FOUR NEGRO THUGS

Two bandits, one of whom wore a large diamond ring, robbed C. W. Asbury, in the rear of his home at 224 North Moreland avenue, Saturday night, of $31 in money.

They were evidently waiting to steal Mr. Asbury's car, as he had started into the garage when the two robbers sprung suddenly in front of him, one covering him with a pistol while the other ransacked his pockets, warning him not to make any outcry. The one who searched Mr. Asbury is the one who wore the diamond ring.

The other man attacked was W. F. Medley, who went into his place at 509 Marietta street, early Sunday morning and found two burglars there. One knocked Mr. Medley to the floor, dazing him for several minutes, during which time they made their escape.

Both Mr. Asbury and Mr. Medley were able to furnish detectives a good description of the robbers, and their arrest during Monday is probable.

Other places burglarized during the early hours of Sunday morning were the Plaza Market, 290 West Peachtree street, and the Athens Soda company, 217 West Mitchell street. At the latter place $3 in change was taken from the cash drawer, two boxes of cigars and a box of cigarettes. It is not shown what was taken from the Plaza Market.

Werrenrath Glad To Give Concert Here Thanksgiving

"I am glad to have an opportunity to come south again," wrote Reinald Werrenrath, great baritone, to the Atlanta Musical bureau, in a letter making arrangements for his Thanksgiving concert in Atlanta. Mr. Werrenrath has made two other trips to Atlanta on the concert stage, and is well known here for his rendering of such ever popular songs as the old Irish love songs, Kipling's "Danny Deever," and "Love Sends a Little Gift of Roses."

"There is no section of America I would rather sing in than the sunny south, and I think I have sung in every state in the union," continued Mr. Werrenrath. "When I was with the Metropolitan Grand Opera company I sang in Atlanta several times, and all of the company agreed that our trip south to Atlanta, Ga., was a holiday more than a work-a-day. In no section of America have I found such open hospitality and sincere geniality as the southerners possess, and the very spirit of the south, I think, makes me do my best singing in the Atlanta Auditorium. I love the south, and I hope to have the pleasure of making at least one singing trip to Atlanta each year."

This year Mr. Werrenrath will sing in the city Auditorium on Thanksgiving evening, and the Cable company has already sold many tickets to the concert.

NEGRO CAPTURED AFTER ALL-NIGHT CHASE BY POLICE

Augusta, Ga., November 19.—After a search which lasted all through last night and a portion of this morning, Quincy Robinson, young negro of Blythe, charged with having stabbed to death W. N. Fountain, white farmer, was captured this morning and lodged in Richmond county jail, accused of murder.

EMORY UNIVERSITY MUSICIANS GIVE SPLENDID CONCERT

Emory university's talented musicians strengthened their hold on the hearts of more than 500 Atlantans and students who enjoyed the school's first orchestra concert of the season in the university auditorium from 4 to 5 o'clock Sunday afternoon.

Every number on the exceptionally well-rounded and well-rendered program received hearty applause from the audience. Perhaps the outstanding numbers, however, were the "Poet and Peasant" overture by the orchestra, and the violin solos by S. H. Proger. Proger, a pupil of Mrs. M. L. Stevens, displayed especially unusual ability.

The success of the initial concert assures the continuation of the Sunday afternoon programs at regular intervals throughout the winter season, according to Dr. M. H. Dewey, director. It is probable that one more program will be given before a section of the orchestra leaves to accompany the noted Emory Glee club on its holiday tour of south Georgia, Florida and a swing down to Havana, Cuba.

Emory students who have "made" the orchestra this year are: Violins, John Turner, Sam Proger, W. P. Harbin, Jr., Carlton Whitehead, Albert H. Cochran, Van Ferguson, A. M. Serex, J. B. George, Joe Jonson, A. E. Young, E. L. Graydon, Marion Watson, J. A. McCurdy; cellos, E. B. Freeman and Preston Arkwright, Jr.; bass, Frank Phillips; cornets, Edwin Jones, Warren T. Jackson and P. L. Moon; trombone, Gordon Watson; oboe, John Candler; clarinet, Jasper Hunt; drums, Morris Segal; French horn, H. M. Tolleson; piano, Alton O'Steen.

Sunday afternaoon's program was: "Alma Mater," orchestra; "Hungarian Dance," No. 5 (Brahms), and "Hungarian Dance," No. 6 (Brahms), orchestra; violin solo, "Meditation," from "Thais," S. H. Proger; "Minuet" (Paderewski), orchestra; "Ases Death," from "Peer Gint" (Grieg), orchestra; tenor solo, "Rose in the Bud," E. H. Lovelace; "Panquita" (Rebyn), orchestra; overture to "Poet and Peasant," orchestra.

POWER OF PRAYER IS SERMON TOPIC

Rev. B. R. Holmes, president of the Holmes' institute, delivered a sermon at the St. Paul African Methodist Episcopal church Sunday entitled, "The Power of Prayer and It's Effects."

"The establishment of the family altar of prayer in the home will do more to solve the problems of crime than all the other agencies combined," Rev. Holmes said.

Following the sermon, Rev. C. C. Gray, pastor of the St. Paul church, urged support of the institute program, which, he said, meant so much to the development of the negro.

DR. MORGAN SPEAKS TO GREAT AUDIENCES

Will Give Series of Sermons Lasting Through Thanksgiving.

Capacity congregations at both morning and evening services greeted Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, widely known divine, at the Baptist Tabernacle Sunday. Dr. Morgan reached Atlanta Saturday on his twentieth visit to the city and will begin a series of sermons lasting through Thanksgiving.

At the 11 o'clock services, Dr. Morgan spoke for an hour to a congregation estimated at 2,000. A special musical program under the direction of Director Spooner was offered at both services.

Dr. Morgan is one of the most prominent ministers in the country and was, until three years ago, pastor of a large church in London. He has delivered messages in virtually all of the larger cities of Europe and this country, having come to Atlanta regularly during the last decade.

DR. JACOBS TO SPEAK TO CLUB AT EMORY

Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, president of Oglethorpe university, will address the International Relations club of Emory university Tuesday night, November 21, on the subject of "Contemporary European Problems." The meeting will be held at 7 o'clock in Room 214 of the Law building on the campus.

Dr. Jacobs has but recently returned from an extended tour of western Europe during which he gained first-hand information for an interesting and valuable survey of present-day conditions.

Chicago, November 19.—A concrete bust of Robert Whitman Leslie, former associate editor of The Philadelphia Public Ledger, and who is now president of the Portlant Cement association, will be presented to the Portland Cement association here Wednesday, November 22, by Secretary of Labor James Davis, according to announcements today. The bust is the gift of children at Mooseheart.

LITTLE GIRL HURT BY FLYING GLASS FROM WINDSHIELD

Lucerne McCullough, 6-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. R. McCullough, of 123 Westminister drive, received cuts about the face Sunday afternoon when thrown against the broken windshield of her father's car as it collided with a white way lamp post at West Peachtree and Alexander streets. She was taken to the Grady hospital where surgeons stated she was not seriously hurt.

Mrs. McCullough stated that her husband, who was driving out West Peachtree street at the time of the accident, cut suddenly into the sidewalk to avoid striking a man who stepped from the curbing almost in front of their automobile.

Lucerne was sitting on the front seat of the car while her twin sister, Suzanne, occupied the rear seat with the mother.

G. W. Dice, of 85 Park street, who was carried to Davis-Fisher sanitarium about 12:30 o'clock Sunday morning after being injured by an automobile in Gordon street, was reported Sunday night to be resting comfortably and surgeons thought he had good chances for recovery. It was at first feared that his skull was fractured and that he had received internal injuries.

Motorcycle Officer W. M. Weaver, who was detailed to investigate the accident, had not submitted his report to Police Captain A. J. Holcombe at a late hour Sunday night, and it is not known how Dice was hurt.

The injury Saturday of Alice Tuggle, negro, of Lithonia, in a collision between a car driven by Tom Harper, negro, also of Lithonia, in which she was riding, and the automobile of O. N. Lyman, 109 East Eleventh street, Sunday, was being investigated by the police. The collision occurred at Pryor and Wall streets.

NO CAUSE FOR ALARM.

In the recent supreme court decision to the effect that Japanese cannot become naturalized citizens of the United States under the law as it stands there is no occasion for misgivings as to the continuance of the present cordial relations and good will existing between the American and Nipponese governments.

The supreme court has done nothing sensational in rendering this decision. Conversely, had it handed down a ruling to the opposite effect, it then would have opened the door to criticism of its action, for to have ruled otherwise than that the law as it stands precludes the naturalization of Japanese would have been for it to have repudiated the plain letter of the constitution.

Justice Sutherland pointed out in the decision that from 1790 to 1870 in every naturalization law the privilege of naturalization was confined to white persons, and in 1870 it was extended to include persons of African descent.

That is the way the law stands today, so the supreme court had no alternative but to rule that persons of the yellow race are barred.

Of course, Japanese who are born in the United States and who are subject to the jurisdiction of this government are American citizens by virtue of the fourteenth amendment to the constitution.

The same rule applies to Chinese and to all other persons irrespective of race or color. The question of naturalization has nothing whatsoever to do with that.

There are many patriotic and broad-minded American citizens who believe that we should alter our attitude and extend the naturalization privilege to Japanese who come here, conform to American customs and law and live credable lives.

Theodore Roosevelt was of that mind, and while he was president, in 1906, in his annual message to congress, he recommended that an act be passed specifically providing for the naturalization of Japanese who come here intending to become American citizens."

But the recommendation was not heeded; no such law was passed.

And until we do change our laws no alien Japanese can legally acquire the status of Amreican citizenship.

Knowing that, there is hardly the remotest likelihood of trouble between Japan and the United States upon that score as a result of the recent supreme court decision, which was nothing more nor less than a plain, matter-of-fact interpretation of the law.

"SOBERING INFLUENCE."

After having passed sentence upon twenty-eight convicted reckless automobile drivers the other day, Judge Charles L. Bartlett, of recorder's court, Detroit, escorted the culprits to Receiving hospital, where they were taken through a ward occupied by children and adults suffering from injuries sustained in traffic accidents.

Explaining his unusual action, Judge Bartlett said he believed the sight of the suffering victims of reckless driving "would have a sobering influence" upon those convicted.

The results of the experiment remain, of course, to be determined.

But it is doubtful if viewing the victims of traffic accident would do much good in the way of curbing recklessness on the part of motor vehicle drivers, for the reason that most drivers who are responsible for such mishaps do not injure any one intentionally, and the sight of those who suffer physical injury is not necessary to inspire them with regret.

And the possibility of deleterious effects of such visits to the patients might easily outweigh the possible corrective effect it might have upon the reckless driver.

But there is one policy to which Judge Bartlett is committed that is above criticism; and that is the policy of sending flagrant violators of the traffic laws to jail instead of letting them buy out of court through the payment of fines.

During the last few months he has sent several hundred speeders and reckless drivers to prison, and he has just been overwhelmingly re-elected upon the strength of that record.

Following his indorsement by the people at the ballot-box he announced, as he began his second term in office, that the length of jail sentences he intends imposing upon persons hereafter convicted in his court will be doubled!

In all probability that announcement of itself will have a more "sobering influence" upon motor vehicle drivers who are inclined to be reckless and to violate the laws than will visits to sufferers in the hospital.

GETTING RESULTS.

Those who are interested in the great mountain outdoors—in the development of national playgrounds in the government's forestry reservations in northeast Georgia and in North and South Carolina—will be heartened by the article of James A. Hollomon on this page, "Gateways to the Mountains."

Mr. Hollomon tells of the co-operative movement under way for the hard surfacing of the Walhalla-Highlands road, which will open the South Carolina gateway to these mountains via the Three-State highway, already graded by the forestry service.

At a banquet last week in Walhalla, attended by a full hundred men of prominence and influence, United States Senator Smith, of South Carolina, pledged his co-operation; and he holds the strategic position of ranking democrat on the senate committee on agriculture and forestry.

This is most significant.

Mr. Hollomon tells also of the recent rebuilding of the Dillard, Ga.-Highlands, N. C., road by the forestry service. He traveled over this rebuilt road in 90 minutes, and it took him nine hours to negotiate the same road six months ago.

This is only one of the quick results of The Constitution's now nationally famous road and forestry tours through the northeast Georgia mountains early last June.

Other and far greater developments are under way or in prospect.

The Blue Ridge reserves of the government are equal in scenic attractiveness to those of any reserves on the continent, and the time is not far distant until they will equal in fame and appeal, for health, recreation, rest and interest those of the great reserves of the Rockies and the Pacific slope.

SPORT BEGINS TODAY.

The open season for general game and migratory bird hunting in Georgia begins today—and "the woods are full of 'em," according to all reports.

The deer season began on November 1, and 54 venison were sold in Savannah as a result of the first day's hunting within a radius of 30 miles of that city. Of course, there were scores of the fleet-footed bucks and does brought down by sportsmen that did not find their way to the markets.

The deer hunting all over south Georgia has been brisk since, and the hunters report wild geese and duck in plenty, and not a few wild turkey.

In central, southwest and north Georgia quail and dove are reported plentiful.

On the whole, therefore, it would appear that the season will be a generally successful and enjoyable one.

Hunters must be equipped with federal as well as state permits. That should not be overlooked. Perhaps a federal warden may be evaded, but it is right and proper that laws be obeyed.

And then huntsmen must not forget that there are certain restrictions that must be observed. For instance, when one good sportsman has bagged twenty-five quail in one day, simply call it a completed job, and quit. That is all the law allows.

The best thing to do is to get a copy of the game regulations from the state warden, and keep posted.

THE SEVEN KINDS OF ITCH.

It is curious how some folks itch without any apparent reason, that is, no visible skin trouble, yet others who appear fairly alive with reasons itch not at all. If one could have a conveniently accessible itching spot, with aseptic skin and nails, what a joy it would be to scratch that spot. But this searching around for the spot that itches is very exasperating. A mosquito bite is not so bad if you can reach it; a hive or two is nothing to get excited about; but there is something maddening about the uncomeatable itching caused by the assault of the nimble little guest that has no wings but gets there just the same.

There are at least seven great types or classes of itch the first of which embraces parasitic invations of the skin, such as scabies (the old fashioned itch facetiously called seven-year itch); barber's itch (ringworm); ground, dew or toe itch (invasion by the larvae of the hookworm). Another type of itch includes the skin lesions of poisoning by various chemicals used industrially or medicinally, and erythema and hives from individual sensitization to certain proteins.

A third type of the itch of the well washed, the too thoroughly washed classes, known as pruritius, winter itch, bath itch, senile itch. Then there is the itch caused by certain ungrateful guests that rush up and attack the host and then rush off again—such as mosquito and bedbug itch. Fifth, the itch caused by guests that live on but not in the skin, such as the well-known school visitor, Pediculus, familiarly dubbed "company." The itching of such acute inflammation of the skin as the dermatitis of ivy poisoning is what I call exqusisite as compared with that of occu:pational poisoning by orthoform, for example, and I speak with much feeling. Finally everybody knows that the chronic socalled catarrhal inflammation of the skin associated with the exudation of serum which dries and crusts more or less—eczema—is one of the commonest types of itch.

Many terms are popularly used in connection with itch, such as Cuban itch, Philippine itch, French itch, prairie itch, Texas mange, lumberman's itch, Ohio scratches and elephant itch. None of these terms has any exact meaning, but may refer to anything from scabies to pruritus, and even smallpox.

The moral to be drawn from this discourse, friends, is that it generally takes more than a neighbor's view to tell just what is itching you. Unfortunately that remedy which is effective in the treatment of, say, primrose dermatitis has little or no value in the treatment of scabies, and a medicament which is mite-y grateful in scabies is likely to aggravate eczema. This isn't very illuminating for any one who may be in quest of something good for some kind of itch. If I knew of anything good for itch in general I'd gladly mention it here, but having seen some very unhappy results from injudicious use of the right medicine for the wrong kind of itch I will close these few lines, thanking you for your kind attention and hoping you will not scratch long before you find a good doctor.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

After the First Four Bottles.

I have been practicing four of the movements of the Brady Symphony which I found in one of your articles some time ago. The results have been surprising. I feel years younger and have changed my attitude and viewpoint materially. Would you kindly forward me the complete symphony, also the technic of the backward rolls or somersaults you referred to in a recent talk.—M. H.

Answer.—You forget that the recipient must always prepay the freight. If you will repeat your request, accompanied by a properly self-directed, stamped envelope, I should be glad to send you a diagram and description of the Somersaultauqua, but when it comes to rolling 'em backward, you must just learn that on your own. It is great fun and good medicine. I roll 'em backward myself. But you understand I have no extensive ground for the burial of my dead and so I have to go easy on the backward stunt. About one in each thousand freshmen in this course who tried the forward rolls swore he broke his neck doing it. I want to keep the mortality low. Nobody who can get down and roll half a dozen somersaults on the floor is old. Anybody who can roll half a dozen or a dozen backward, coming up smiling each time, is still young. This is just as good and scientific as any test there is. Some poor old geeks think it is just a joke; they do not take this somersault stuff seriously. Let 'em learn to roll and roll right back again, if they can, and then they'll begin to see that it is life that is a joke, and they won't take life so seriously.

Tuberculosis.

Three months ago my doctor told me my right lung was affected with tuberculosis. He has been giving me regular treatment for tuberculosis, and now I have gained 21 pounds and the doctor says all danger is past and I am almost entirely cured. Is it possible I could have recovered from tuberculosis in three months? Do you advise me to go to southern California or New Mexico?—M. B. J.

Answer.—Certainly it is possible. Tuberculosis is the most curable of all serious chronic diseases, if intelligently treated, and that implies early recognition of the disease, as in your case. I should advise no change of climate unless your doctor thinks it necessary.

TODAY'S TALK

BY GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

(Copyright, 1922, for The Constitution)

FIRSTS.

Before we can possibly understand life, we must first get into ourselves and become daily discoverers of our own hidden resources.

And before we can intelligently walk up to God and tell Him that we want to become a living part of His plan, we must first walk up to ourselves and pledge honest allegiance.

It is much more profitable to look first after one's soul than one's fortune.

For what shall it profit a man if he gain the whole world and lose this soul of his—in the thought of the Bible.

And how character stands high and dry and grand against an estate of mere lands and moneyed possessions.

Before you can possibly succeed, you must first learn the simple principles on which success depends—work, honesty, enthusiasm, loyalty, love, unselfishness.

If you have no belief in life, how can immortality have any appeal for you?

And if you have no confidence in yourself, how can you hope for the confidence of others?

First become expert in the handling of little things—efficiently—and then the big things will loom before you and you will enter into them with confident enthusiasm and full of faith in their ultimate accomplishment.

First have love in your own heart for others—and the love of others for you will naturally follow.

Harbor clean thoughts and the entire world will look clean to you.

If you want to measure the life of a building, first look over its foundation.

Give first consideration to your health if you would live long and well, and do much.

Gateways to the Mountains

BY JAMES A. HOLLOMON

At Walhalla, S. C., Wednesday evening, the citizens of that progressive little gateway to the mountains showed an enterprise, and a spirit of co-operative accomplishment that is worthy of emulation by cities much larger—

And it is an index to a community interest, and to a get-what-you-go-after habit that will result well, not only for Walhalla and Oconee county, but for that great section to the west that is destined and is indeed rapidly becoming the playground of the eastern and southern states.

* * * *

On the particular occasion that I speak of the citizens of Walhalla, under the auspices of a live local chamber of commerce, gave a banquet as a get-together conference in the interest of completing the "Tri-State highway" between Walhalla and Highlands, N. C., a distance of 37 miles. The road, winding around mountains and through broad plateaus, is one of the scenic highways of the Blue Ridge. It runs for about 16 miles in South Carolina, nine miles in Georgia—Rabun county—and 12 miles in North Carolina. More than half of the entire highway mileage passes through the Nantahala reservation of the national forests.

The road has been brought to an almost perfect mountain grade by the federal forestry service—that is by the federal service through the forestry land. The South Carolina highway commission has graded the road to the Nantahala line, and for three or four miles out of Walhalla it has a sand-clay surface.

In all of that section of the Blue Ridge there is not a more important highway approach to the North Carolina and northeast Georgia mountains than this one. The seven miles from Seneca to Walhalla is almost perfect, with a strong and dependable surface; and with the Walhalla-Highlands road surfaced this particular gateway would lead to a section of rare scenic beauty that would soon be developed, as is the French Broad zone further to the north.

* * * *

In order to impress the importance of the development, and to bring interested parties together in a close-up conference the banquet was planned.

At this affair, held at the Alexander hotel, there were 97 covers, and everyone present was an interested and an enthusiastic participant.

Bankers, merchants, lawyers, doctors, preachers, teachers, manufacturers, farmers—they were all there, not only from Walhalla territory, but from Highlands. There were a number of business men from Atlanta present, including those who own summer cottages in the Highlands section of the Blue Ridge.

It was not only a pleasure for me to be present, but I caught the spirit of enthusiasm, and in line with the work that The Constitution has been doing for opening up these great forestry playgrounds, and in making them more approachable, and of greater service to the public, I hope to be able to help in the great undertaking that these enterprising people of Walhalla and Highlands have begun.

Senator Ed Smith, of South Carolina, who holds the strategic position of ranking democrat on the committee on agriculture and forestry in the United States senate, was present and pledged his hearty support in favor of a special appropriation for the surfacing of this mountain approach. Supervising Forester Shields of the Nantahala reservation, of Franklin, N. C., and Engineer Fox, of the United States forestry service, were present and pledged their aid and cooperation in so far as practicable under the forestry laws—

And it's coming! Nothing was ever accomplished without an effort; and this is one proposal where the worth of a good all-the-year highway will repay any reasonable effort that may be made for it.

The banquet was most entertainingly presided over by Mayor Moss, of Walhalla, and the object of the occasion was most earnestly, enthusiastically and eloquently stated by Colonel Jaynes, a prominent member of the South Carolina bar. Many good speeches were made by professional and business men of Walhalla, Highlands and Atlanta.

* * * *

At Highlands Thursday I was a guest of the chamber of commerce, and was shown particular courtesies by Messers. Bascom, Harris, Smith, Edwards, Hall, Potts and others.

Did you ever visit Highlands, N. C.?

It is away up in the clouds, with an altitude in the village around 4,000 feet. Of course, it is a great deal higher at some of the mountain estates in the section. It is not on a railroad, Dillard, Ga., eighteen miles south, being the nearest railroad point.

It is on one of the most beautiful plateaus in all of the Carolina mountains, with a number of picturesque peaks rising gracefully on every side. It is in late spring and summer the center of one immense natural bouquet of mountain laurel and rhododendron. The water is perfect, the air pure, the people hospitable—an ideal mountain spot that meets every requirement for rest, health, recreation, interest.

There is but little artificial about Highlands, for the hand of God has sculptured the rocks, and planted the forests, and created the passes and the natural trails, and the brooks and lakes and streams and springs, far more perfectly than any human artist could possibly do; and here nature abounds in all of its most attractive beauty and glory.

From Highlands Friday I drove over eighteen miles of mountain road to Dillard, Ga., almost directly through the Nantahala reservation, in one and a half hours, that it took The Constitution's road and forestry entourage eight hours to negotiate on the 5th of last June.

"Dry weather," it may be suggested.

That is true in a measure, of course; but the reason is, the road has been completely remade from one end to the other by the United States Bureau of Forestry under the superintending direction of Ranger Potts. Grades have been thrown up, cuts made, soft bottoms built up with rocks, culverts put in, bridges built—and now the road, in most places with a natural gravel surface, is the equal of any road in the mountains except those in the more highly developed sections, or on which great amounts of money have been spent.

This road, as it is today, is only one of the concrete results of The Constitution's tour that was made less than six months ago.

There are many other direct results equally as striking—and of as great a value to the public that seeks the great outdoors.

* * * *

I have been told throughout the mountains of northeast Georgia during the past week that the season that is now at a close has broken all records for the number of people who flocked to them for rest and recreation and health, and all as a result of The Constitution's enterprise.

Friends of the hills, listen! The work that was undertaken by this newspaper is just beginning!

The forestry service is now mapping out a system of roads and trails through is chief engineer, Mr. Norcross, who has but recently been over both the Cherokee and Nantahala reservations, and already funds have been allocated by the forestry service for some of these, while the federal bureau of roads is preparing to work upon others.

The Georgia Highway department is doing its part well.

The time is coming—and it is not far distant—when the Blue Ridge reservations will be the most famous, and I will venture, the most attractive, of all the government forests in America.

And for the part that this newspaper has played in the undertaking, so great and so serviceable an accomplishment, fully realized, will be the cherished reward it seeks.

SAVANNAH IS HOST TO MASONIC REUNION

Savannah, Ga., November 19.—(Special.) — Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of this week the fall reunion of the co-ordinated Scottish Rite bodies, the A. and A. S. R. of Free Masonry, will be held in Savannah, with Masons from all sections of the territory present. Degrees will be conferred upon many classes. On special dispensation recently, the Scottish Rite Masons of Savannah conferred in one day all the degrees up to the thirty-second upon Rev. Bureau of Industries And Its Influence On Atlanta Real Estate

Editor Constitution: The most important movement inaugurated for Atlanta is the establishing of a Bureau of Industries for our city. The growth of Atlanta and the amount of money being poured in here for investment is phenominal.

Atlanta occupies a commanding position for the location of industrial plants to manufacture hundreds of articles that are sold in the legitimate territory reached by the traveling men making their headquarters here who represent manufacturing concerns in the east and west.

There are between fifteen hundred and two thousand of these salesmen. Little of this business is credited to Atlanta and even the pay checks come from headquarters in the cities where the factories are located.

The business men of Atlanta know from a practical standpoint the articles that can be manufactured here at a profit. This conclusion can be reached readily. When the wonderful growth of our beloved city is considered we must do a lot of thinking about how we are to care for the artisans in the different trades who will be attracted to Atlanta as a delightful city in which to live. Build factories that will give them employment. Millions of dollars can be secured to build industrial plants if such plants are organized and operated on the highest business principles. An era of great industrial development now awaits us if we take advantage of the opportunities knocking at our very doors.

The business men of Atlanta are aroused on this subject and they only need a comprehensive plan laid before them to put into operation the biggest movement ever adopted to place Atlanta on the map as the greatest manufacturing city in the entire south. It is gratifying to know that our chamber of commerce has started this movement and it should succeed to the highest degree in accomplishing the ideals so gloriously sought. Here is an accomplishment in one city: A bureau was established; in two years new industries employing 50,000 hands with $95,000,000 new capital were brought to that city. We cannot afford to stand still. Atlanta is too great to miss this opportunity. The effect of this movement on real estate can hardly be estimated. Our industrial sites would be snapped up quick, millions spent in material and labor and thousands of homes sold to men who are able to pay for them and make us valuable citizens. It's an inspiration and not simply an ideal. The men, material and money are at home and all we have to do now is to bring them together.

JAMES L. LOGAN.

Working at Standardizing Long-Staple Cotton

Editor Constitution: Your recent editorial entitled "Better Cotton," in which you advocated the planting of a better type of cotton in the Piedmont section of Georgia, was the soundest and most practical suggestion that could be made at this time, and in my opinion, if pushed energetically, will mean a greatly increased yield and improved staple for middle Georgia the coming year.

The practical value of the election of a good variety of cotton and the use of pedigreed seed was demonstrated this past season in the Winterville community of Clarke county.

Up to October 17, Clarke county had ginned 1,097 bales, 636 of which were produced and ginned at Winterville, which represents but a small fraction of the total area of the county.

The relatively high production at Winterville was due to two factors: The use of calcium arsenate and to well-selected, high-yielding, good staple varieties.

Thoroughly Tested.

Both varieties average an inch staple. In fact some of the farmers who are members of the Cotton association had their crops pooled as "inch and one-sixteenth." Both varieties are outstanding in yield as tested for a period of years by the State College of Agriculture.

At a meeting of the Winterville Pure Seed association, which was held in the agricultural classroom of the high school, J. T. Pittard, a prominent farmer and banker of Clarke county, stated that the interest in the use of better seed, which had made their cotton yield of the past year possible, was due to the work of the Smith-Hughes teacher of agriculture in their school.

On account of this compliment and tribute to the economic value of this type of education in our public schools, I thought you might be interested in a brief statement relative to our plan for the coming season as it touches cotton production.

The Georgia state board for vocational education, under the provisions of the Smith-Hughes act, has at this time more than 2,000 boys enrolled in agricultural classes in the public schools of the state. Each of these boys, in addition to a study of the science of agriculture, grows a crop each year under the direct supervision of his teacher.

Next year we hope to have a large number of these boys grow cotton, especially those boys who live in the Piedmont section of the state.

To Use Dusting Machines.

Every acre will be dusted with calcium arsenate. The state board for vocational education is assisting schools in the purchase of hand-dusting machines. As soon as the state board of entomology makes a contract for arsenate each teacher in the state plans to buy a supply that will be adequate for the needs of his boys the coming season.

And every acre will be planted to a variety that has not less than an inch staple and which through a period of years has proven to be a high yielding variety. Our motto is: "Increase the Yield and Improve the Quality" through the use of better seed.

At this time we are holding group meetings of the Smith-Hughes teachers of agriculture throughout the state and making plans for this work. Beginning with a meeting in Cornelia, on Saturday, November 4, a meeting will be held each Saturday until December 9. On Saturday of this week we will have a meeting in Carrollton.

We feel that the coming season is the psychological time to teach our boys how to grow cotton under boll weevil conditions.

PAUL W. CHAPMAN,
State Supervisor of Agricultural Education.

National Education As Bonus Alternative

Editor Constitution: All schools of higher learning being over-crowded, and every university and college in the country seeking fresh endowments to meet pressing needs, the attention has been called of Major-General Peter C. Harris, formerly adjutant-general at Washington, and of Major Ellsworth Wilson, at Chattanooga, Tenn., chairman and secretary of the National Memorial University association, an organization formed by higher officers of the army to establish a suitable memorial to those who died in the service of the country during the late war, that a most fitting and proper educational memorial was to be found in the following suggested alternative to the bonus:

That the federal government share equally with states, counties, municipalities, religious denominations, fraternal and other organizations, and with individuals, and, wherever possible, with institutions already functioning, during the next ten or more years, in establishing self-supporting universities on the Oxford and Cambridge system of a score or more of colleges, where students may have the opportunity to work as well as to study, thus making provision for the higher education of all children, qualified of all men and women who served in the army, navy and marine corps in the late war, it being understood that the sole connection of the government with the matter will be the assumption of one-half of the liability for any money expended for the purposes outlined, even the question of the payment of interest to be left open for further discussion.

In considering the question of a great national memorial educational movement as an alternative to the bonus, two matters of importance have to be mentioned. The first is that every dollar properly spent on education reproduces itself over and over again in increased production and suitable expenditures for national education are economically sound. The second is, that Roman Catholics and differing Protestant denominations at the University of the Philippines separately maintain and control the dormitories. This dormitory system has worked so admirably and without friction that there can be little doubt it would readily adapt itself, working through a collegiate system, to the American spirit, at any of our universities.

In detail, this proposal was submitted to Henry Ford, and from the Dearborn Independent comes this characteristic reply: "The only weakness I see in the scheme is that it is so sane and worthwhile it won't be done." To what extent a creative suggestion to advance human intellectual development on a national scale may be sane and worth while only the future can really tell, but to the objection that the suggestion is too big there can be only one reply, viz, that it is really not big enough. Problems looming in the future are so large and so grave that the only conceivable solution seems to rest in the spread of higher education along channels of international as well as national life.

For instance, scientists tell us that great dangers may come with the discovery of the utilization of atomic energy, and the possession of the knowledge may demand a better and a more intelligent world. For that and one hundred other reasons the world must have increasingly and in great numbers more and more thinking human beings, for while the thing most to be desired today, and in the future, is intelligent and courageous leadership, the thing most to be feared is that our civilization will prove incapable of enlightened self-interest in an urgent hour, and thereby stupidly encompass its own destruction.

BITS OF NEW YORK LIFE

BY O. O. M'INTYRE

New York, November 19.—A page from the diary of a modern Samuel Pepys: Up and cuffed my dog and in sorrow overfed him and he was ill all day. By post many letters, a brave one from Ring Lardner which I treasure. To breakfast with my cousin, Lucy Virginia, who has become a bride and never was she prettier.

Walked aimlessly through the city and saw Gil Boag, Charles Cochran, the London play man, and Sir Chauncey Depew. It is pretty to see the toy shops but heavens! the prices. A trifling doodad costing a fortune. Put in at Earl Carroll's theater and sat awhile with Earl, who has been ill.

Home and did my stint and with a noble spirit, too, albeit a group of roysterers, merry and bright, held high carnival next door. Played a new Chinese game with my wife, poor wretch, but she was more adroit and beat me with fair ease.

A high wind blowing during the evening and flung down bricks and poles yet I donned my rain-coat and ambled about, it being the sort of weather I most admire. So home drenched and to bed.

The skirt length is dropping despite the fight made by the Rainy Day club, of New York. It was the Rainy Daisies who first lifted women's skirts from the mire. They have passed resolution after resolution for stylists to keep their hands off. Yet the smartest women now wear their skirts almost to the ground and evening dresses are developing the long train. A word of cheer—they say skirts may be shorter next spring.

Columbia's School of Journalism is going in for realism. Aside from reporters being sent out on big stories that happen in the town, the college has installed the news services of the Associated Press, International News and United Press, which come over special wires. My criticism of schools of journalism is that the students do not come in contact with printers. Most of the knowledge of newspapermen comes from printers. I learned about the split infinitive from a stereotyper.

A rowdy little wren of the chorus drove up to her stage door the other night in her roadster. She was late.

"The manager told me to tell you that you were discharged," said the venerable door-keeper.

"Isn't he the pussy's purr?" she laughed. "Tell him to read the morning papers and try to laugh it off."

It developed that she had married the "angel" who was backing the show that night, and the next day there was a new manager.

It was after midnight. In the darkened doorway of a department store near Forty-second street I saw a man fumbling uncertainly in the shadows. After watching him a few moments I saw that he was blind. In his hand he held a rose. "I was trying to take this flower," he explained, "to my little girl who lives in Sixth avenue." He thought it was 9 o'clock in the morning. I walked to the door leading to the little apartment. "Will you put the flower in her mail box?" he said. "Her mother divorced me when I lost my sight."

: PITHY PARAGRAPHS :

The Pithy Paragraph editor is dumbfounded!

A letter in the day's mail from Oliver Goldsmith casts an entirely new light on the affair between James Boswell and the editor and it now appears that arrangements for the duel with niblicks at the Stockade must proceed at once.

The high character of Dr. Samuel Johnson and his friends is made apparent in Mr. Goldsmith's letter, which, despite its implied threats is presented herewith:

"To the Conductor of the Pithy Paragraphs.

"Sir:

"I have the honor to inform you, Sir, that if you will kindly acquaint me with your name and address, Sir Joshua Reynolds and I shall have the pleasure of calling upon you in an affair connected with the eminent Samuel Johnson, LL.D., of London, Eng., and his friend James Boswell, Esq., whose residence is in Scotland. I have perused your article in the publick prints, and while I must confess myself unacquainted with the instrument which you term a niblick, I am assured that any honorable weapon will be acceptable to my friend Boswell.

"In this connection, Sir, since you have displayed such a penchant for publicity as your recent article would indicate, allow me to communicate the information that I am a writer not altogether unknown to the world, being the author of the farce-comedy, "SHE STOOPS TO CONQUER," which I cannot say has been presented on the stage with any considerable lack of appreciation, both here and abroad; also, I have written several books of a poetick nature, which have not been very badly received. It is not surprising, therefore, that I have been called upon, on various occasions, to compose epitaphs in verse for the tombstones of worthy persons; and should you be pleased to drop a hint of this to members of your immediate family, you may mention that I consider the sum of five or six pounds in no wise too meagre a compensation.

"I have no reason not to believe that you will be otherwise than delighted to meet such a distinguished artist as Sir Joshua Reynolds, who has painted portraits of many notable persons, and could no doubt be induced to arrange with you for a sitting, before the duel. There is nothing like a well-painted portrait, Sir, to keep fresh in the minds of loved ones the sacred memory of the departed.

"I am, Sir,
"Your obedient humble servant,
"OLIVER GOLDSMITH."
"Nov'r. 17, 1922."

The editor must confess that he now has little desire to stain his niblick with the blood of the eminent Mr. Boswell. Indeed, such is our change of heart in the matter that we may easily fall before the prowess of our adversary.

If death should be our measure, however, we feel that we have not lived in vain. It is not everyone can boast of having refused the palm to the literary endeavors of Dr. Samuel Johnson, of having his portrait painted by Sir Joshua Reynolds, of having his epitaph written by Oliver Goldsmith or—of being neatly dispatched by James Boswell.

As a parting message to the contributors I wish to say that today's Howard tickets have been won by John Edgar and N. D. Nickerson. Bless you all and may you all land on the Howard screen.

SAMUEL JOHNSON, LL.D.

Samuel Johnson doffed his crown,
And slyly earthward slipped he down,
Alighting in Atlanta town
To get a glass of beer;
He looked about and walked around,
And "where is bliss?" I heard him sound,
And with a mighty look profound

Old Doctor Johnson didn't wait
To visit much about the state,
But with a fast and furious gait
He took himself away;
And though I didn't hear him hiss
Or knock the town and state, I wis
The Doctor didn't find much "bliss,"
Because he wouldn't stay.

SUITABLE FOR TODAY.

Mary had a little cold—
It started in her head,
And everywhere that Mary went
That cold was sure to spread.

It followed her to school one day,
'Twas not against the rule;
It made the children cough and sneeze
To have that cold in school.

The teacher tried to drive it out;
She tried hard, but—kachoo—
It didn't do a bit of good;

ACES AND ARMY PLAY FROM WGM

First "Army Night" Program to Be Broadcast by Constitution Tonight. Aces in New Numbers.

With the return of Warner's Seven Aces and the introduction of the United States army's most talented musical artists, Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, today offers one of the strongest radio bills ever presented to the American music-loving and radio-mad public.

The Aces have had a two-day's respite from radio activity and will play with new zest some enlivening new music of a popular nature at the 6 o'clock broadcasting period. The program will be announced by radio.

Sergeant G. J. Ryan, of Fort McPherson, has arranged a full hour's program to be broadcast at the 9:30 o'clock period by artists from the army post. It includes a variety of good music, vocal and instrumental, that will provide the most enjoyment to the minute that has been offered recently.

The Twenty-second infantry 14-piece orchestra will be heard in six selections, popular and classic, including Offenback's "Barcarolle," Suppe's "Jolly Robbers" and Young's racy "Carolina Rolling Stone." John Anderson is conductor. Private Ralph Gordon will play Wagner's "Evening Star" as a solo.

Mrs. E. S. Hatfield contralto, and Mrs. Raymond C. Williams, soprano, will each be heard in vocal solos. Both are noted for having beautiful and cultivated voices. Their selections will be announced by radio. Sergeant Ryan, who has arranged the program, will also be heard in a tenor solo. Mrs. DeWitt J. Sapp will play the piano accompaniments.

The Twenty-second Infantry orchestra has a nation-wide reputation in military circles as being probably the best army musical aggregation on American soil. The director, John Anderson, had an enviable reputation as a musician and director before he put on the uniform. While the vocal music and Private Gordon's solo will be well above the average of musical excellence, it is the orchestra which is expected to make the big hit of the evening. It has been heard several times before in Atlanta and has always been highly praised wherever it has played.

PIONEER ATLANTAN IS CRITICALLY ILL

Wils C. Brown, pioner Atlantan, is critically ill at his Inman Park home following a paralytic stroke. Mr. Browns was born and reared in Atlanta, and is a member of the Pioneer School Boys' club.

Members of the family were summoned to the bedside when virtually all hope for his recovery was abandoned Sunday. He is the father of Ernest Brown, W. C. Brown, Jr., Mrs. Edward Daniel Teek, Mrs. Sam McDonald, and Mrs. Beatrice Commander.

Church Conference.

Tifton, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Churches belonging to the Valdosta, Colquitt, Mallary and Mell Baptist associations were represented at a meeting held in Tifton today at which J. Fred Eaton, field worker, presided. It was in the nature of a conference, Mr. Eaton outlining a program of work in the various churches, about fifty delegates attending. Dinner was spread by the ladies of the Tifton church.

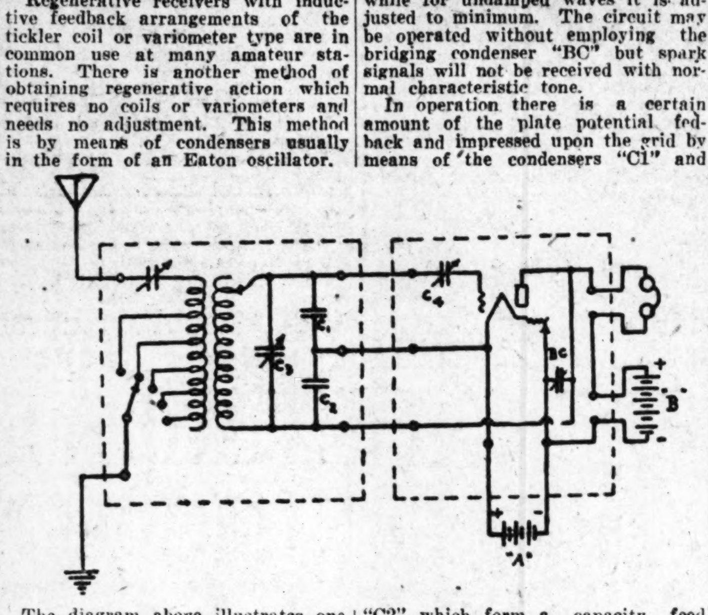
Lesson No. 198.
The Eaton Oscillator.

Regenerative receivers with inductive feedback arrangements of the tickler coil or variometer type are in common use at many amateur stations. There is another method of obtaining regenerative action which requires no coils or variometers and needs no adjustment. This method is by means of condensers usually in the form of an Eaton oscillator.



The diagram above illustrates one way in which the Eaton oscillator may be incorporated into a receiving set made up in two units. One unit (the one at the left) contains the tuning elements and the other unit contains vacuum tube apparatus. The Eaton oscillator which consists essentially of two condensers in series is incorporated in the unit containing the tuning device which is of the loose coupler or variocoupler type. A secondary shunt condenser of the variable air type is also mounted in this unit to assist in tuning the secondary circuit.

The unit at the right contains a vacuum tube detector circuit of the usual type with a lead running directly from the plate to a binding post which is strapped across to one side of the secondary circuit. The other side of the secondary circuit connects to the grid of the vacuum tube through the grid condenser "C4" which may be of the variable air type. A bridging condenser "BC" is connected from the plate to one (negative) side of the filament battery. The condensers "C1" and "C2" constitute the oscillator or feed back portion of the circuit while the condenser "BC" is important in the adjustment of the system for the reception of damped or undamped waves. For receiving damped waves condenser "BC" is set at maximum while for undamped waves it is adjusted to minimum. The circuit may be operated without employing the bridging condenser "BC" but spark signals will not be received with normal characteristic tone.

In operation there is a certain amount of the plate potential fedback and impressed upon the grid by means of the condensers "C1" and "C2" which form a capacity feed back in contrast to the inductive arrangement usually employed.

The circuit shown may be applied to any loose coupler and tube detector system without materially changing the circuits or dismounting the apparatus. The condensers "C1" and "C2" are two fixed condensers in series across the secondary terminals with the grid on one side, filament in the middle and the plate on the other side.

While not particularly adapted to short wave work, it has been possible to get down to 230 meters with this device and good regeneration is obtained up to several thousand meters. A receiver of this type is comparatively simple to operate, the receiving unit lacking the usual tickler coil control or the variometers which serve similar purposes.

In conclusion, it appears that there are three common ways of obtaining regeneration in a vacuum tube receiving system, first by the inductive feed back arrangement using a tickler, second by means of the tuned plate and grid circuits and third by means of the capacity feed back arrangements described above and known as the Eaton oscillator. In the Air With WGM

By One Who Reads Them All

IT'S just about as hard to get a dyed-in-the-wool amateur to acknowledge that there is some good in broadcasting stations as it is to find an honest-to-goodness hardshell Baptist who doesn't pay his debts.

Of course plenty of amateurs will write broadcasting stations that they have heard their programs, but they don't very often admit they are amateurs.

But Station WGM, according to even some amateurs, puts out some good programs. Two of the latest writers to Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, are confessed members of the American Radio Relay League. One is P. J. Kuprion, 2214 Frankfort avenue, Louisville, Ky.

Mr. Kuprion is dyed-in-the-wool, too, in his amateur activities. He doesn't say "your broadcasting" or "your concerts." He calls it "signals," just like every other really active amateur would.

"Your signals received here very QSA on two steps of amplification with magnavox," Mr. Kuprion writes. "Heard you on 400 meters SHARP. You come in very loud. Can be heard all over the place."

The other amateur who writes Station WGM is Joseph H. Schiele, 824 Bordeaux street, New Orleans, La. He doesn't say much about WGM's concerts, but he's interested enough to ask for The Constitution's transmitting schedule. He does say "we get you loud and clear over here on a Paragon receiver.

LETTERS are still pouring into Station WGM on the Clerk Canadian program. That program created as much interest among Station WGM listeners as any ever given by The Constitution.

One of the letters on the Clerk Canadian program is that of A. J. Weis, of 373 East 204th street, New York. Mr. Weis' letter is on top of the pile of them I have before me. He writes:

"The concluding number, the Canadian patriotic song, broadcast from your station on the evening of November 14, came through at this point with remarkable clearness and ample volume.

"I might add that this was received on one WD-11 dry cell tube with regeneration."

* * * *

THERE are other letters before me on the Canadian program, but I must go on to the letter that comes from Alexander B. Nichol. The signature looks like Nichol, but I'm not sure of it.

The writer in question—I'll have to call him Ensign Nichol—is of the Salvation Army.

"I want to take this opportunity," the ensign writes, "of extending my appreciation for the very interesting programs rendered from your splendid broadcasting station. I am located at 288 Beech street, Bogota, N. J., and have a 3-bulb receiving set.

"I have many friends in Atlanta. I was in charge of the Salvation Army corps there from 1919 to April, 1921."

I've asked about the office concerning the ensign, but rather perfunctorily, and didn't happen to strike the fellows who know the ensign, but Salvation Army leaders here would do me the favor to send his correct name to me by mail.

* * * *

SOME fellows don't seem to be able to get enough radio sets. I've talked to bugs right here in Atlanta who have three or four sets lying around their houses. Of course, all of them are of different hook-ups.

None of these Atlanta bugs can come up to Ned Rudolph, of 423 North Byers avenue, Joplin, Mo., unless it's Thurston Hatcher or Frank McMaster, or some of those pioneers of radio development in Georgia.

Here's what Mr. Rudolph writes us.

"Tonight I picked up your station and heard the concluding number and the signing-off announcement. I feel that it was a compliment to your station coming in as clear and loud as it did tonight as it stormed all evening and the static has been terrible. As I listened to you there was some lightning, but you came in good in spite of the weather.

"You may be interested in knowing I have picked up 32 stations in 17 different states. I have built eight sets (no two alike), which I use, and if The Joplin Globe, where I am employed as a linotype machinist, don't go broke, I expect to build some more."

* * * *

RADIO broadcast entertainment is interesting every class of people. Educators and instructors in schools and colleges are outstanding enthusiasts as a rule. When such people are really interested in a thing it is one means of assurance that it will live and develop rapidly.

That's why I am so pleased over hearing from E. J. Huntemer, of the department of industrial arts of the State Normal School and Teachers' college at Wayne, Neb.

Mr. Huntermer writes the following to Station WGM:

"I am able to hear you well! and at times extra strong. Davenport, Iowa, and Louisville, Ky., overlap a little with you.

"You are the most distant of the 26 stations I hear—practically 1,000 miles."

* * * *

I STARTED out with New Orleans, and right here near the end I find a letter from Kentwood, La., down in the same neighborhood, as a neighborhood is considered in radio broadcasting.

E. B. Kennon, who sells flivvers in Kentwood, writes the following to WGM:

"A party of my friends enjoyed your program of November 15, which came through so clear it seemed as though the entertainers were with us. My set consists of a type X Crosley and an R-3 magnavox. I use only one 22 1-2-volt B battery.

* * * *

THOSE listeners up north like our southern music. George Dukes, agent for the Chicago Great Western railroad at Reinbeck, Iowa, is just one of many who have praised the programs from Station WGM presenting southern artists. He just remarks in his card to WGM that "the southern people surely put on good music."

And then, in the card written by F. C. Bradley, a jeweler and optometrist, of Union, Miss., there's a word for the older songs. "We enjoy your concerts very much," Mr. Bradley writes. "Large audience every night. We like those old familiar songs."

* * * *

MAYBE I'll get a chance to use some more of yesterday's reports tomorrow. It will be a shame if I have to pass them up in the rush of tomorrow's mail.

BRILLIANT SUNDAY EVENING PROGRAM

Nora Allen, Mrs. Roy Webb, Clifford Durham and Frank Tindall Sing in Volpi Program.

Signor E. Volpi presented Sunday night a galaxy of as brilliant stars as have ever sung from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, in any of his remarkable Sunday evening concerts.

The Constitution's Sunday evening broadcast period has long been established as one of the real musical events of each week in Atlanta. The best singers of all the artists who are coached by Signor Volpi are featured on the weekly programs in a quality of music seldom attempted over radio in the south.

The unusual storm of landphoned encores received during each of the Sunday evening programs may be considered as much a tribute to the musical taste of the radio public as to the high quality of the singers who are heard.

Four singers last night shared equal honors on the remarkable program. Nora Allen, former soprano of the Chicago Grand Opera company, Mrs. Roy Webb, contralto soloist at the First Christian church; Clifford Durham, tenor soloist of the First Methodist church, and Frank Tindall, baritone of the Volpi Grand Opera quartet, were the stars.

Outstanding numbers of the program were "E Lucevan e Stelle" from Tosca, sung in English by Mr. Durham; "How Can I Leave Thee," sung by Nora Allen; Tosti's "Goodbye," sung at the special request of listeners by Mrs. Webb, and "Whispering Hope," sung in duet by Nora Allen and Mr. Tindall.

The feature number was the singing of the "Quartet" from Rigoletto by all four. The difficult parts of that masterpiece of the composer's genius were handled with a beautiful harmony and power that recalled the time two years ago when an audience at the city auditorium went wild over the singing by the stars of the Metropolitan Opera company.

More than a dozen special numbers were requested by listeners and four of the requests were granted. The others will be filled in some future concert.

Mrs. Victor Clark, organist at the First Christian church, accompanied Mrs. Webb's songs. Signor Volpi played the accompaniments for the others.

HEARERS PLEASED BY VIVIAN HARRIS

Miss Vivian Harris, sweet-voiced dramatic soprano, and S. E. Hubbard, of Kirkwood, cornetist, broadcasted some sacred music of quality supreme from Station WGM, The Atlanta Constitution, during the Sunday afternoon sacred concert yesterday.

A larger volume of land-phoned requests for special numbers and for repetition of numbers which had been sung and played, was received before the concert ended than has been received at any other Sunday afternoon broadcast in several weeks.

A new tenor, Fred Smith, was so well received in his part of a duet with Miss Harris that the station was bombarded with appeals for a solo, which was granted in "The Rosary." Mrs. S. E. Hubbard accompanied her husband in his cornet solos and Miss Carol Gifford accompanied the vocalists. Both used the melodious Conover grand piano furnished by the Cable Piano company.

The best numbers of the recital were Miss Harris' soprano solo, "He Is Not a Disappointment," sung by special request; Mr. Hubbard's cornet solo, "Holy City," and the duet by Miss Harris and Mr. Smith, "The Holy Hour," sung with the music of "The Rosary." The duet was repeated, as an exception to the usual policy of WGM, because so many listeners appealed for a second rendition.

Other numbers on the program were "He Is Mine," "Come, Jesus, Redeemer," and "When They Ring Those Golden Bells," sung by Miss Harris; "Hold Thou My Hand," "I Come to Thee," "Face to Face," and "A Little Bit of Love," cornet solos by Mr. Hubbard.

Several numbers requested, for which there was no time for compliance, will be sung by Miss Harris or played by Mr. Hubbard, at some future recital.

Sir Walter and the Spud

IN Ireland, they still point to the place where Sir Walter Raleigh planted the potatoes he brought with him from America. The venturous knight was much impressed with the edible qualities of potatoes and touted them highly to his friends. But in spite of his efforts to popularize the spud, it was half a century or more before it became an article of general consumption abroad.

Today, a new food product becomes nationally known almost overnight. Modern methods of distribution quickly place it in thousands of stores. Advertising tells the public about it in the newspapers. People try it, like it and shortly it is in general use throughout the country. By the same means American manufacturers — through advertising — are putting within your reach many of the boons of modern life. Without advertising, we would lack many of the comforts and conveniences that go to make life what it is in this year of grace.

Advertising keeps your information up-to-snuff on every article of human need, whether it be food, clothing, articles of household utility, necessities or luxuries.

Continued Trade Progress In Evidence Last Week

New York, November 19.—(By the Associated Press.)—Continuation of a high rate of industrial activity and satisfactory progress of fall trade are indicated by the business of the past week. Steel production, if anything, improved and is now stated to be between 75 and 80 per cent of the country's capacity. Cotton consumption returns show that textile mills used 534,000 bales in October, this figure being 39,000 larger than for September and setting a new high record for any month since June, 1920. Soft coal production has continued at a rate of about 10,700,000 a week, or at about the best attained since the end of the strike.

Perhaps the first sign of a seasonal slackening which must be expected is furnished in the statistics of car loadings. Total loadings for the week eneded November 4, amounted to 994,000 cars, which is some 20,000 cars below the total for the week before, which was the largest for the year. Such a decline is quite the natural thing, the peak of the traffic movement generally being reached in October and having come this year, in fact, slightly later than is usually the case.

Prices of farm products meanwhile have shown a considerable degree of firmness. December wheat rallied to slightly above $1.20 which reports a gain of over 20 cents from the recent low. A strong recovery in the foreign exchange market after pronounced weakness early in the week probably was a factor, as were reports of large German needs for the commodity. At the same time offerings of wheat have been light and sentiment in the trade has become distinctly more bullish. Corn also moved into high ground for the year. The December future getting above 72 cents as compared with a price of 52 cents in August. This improvement even more than that in wheat emphasizes the gain which has been achieved in the farmer's income.

In cotton the market has continued to fluctuate in the neighborhood of 25 and 26 cents despite heavy profit taking. Opinion continues to differ as to the ultimate size of the crop, but something nearer 10,000,000 than 9,000,000 bales was talked of during the past week. In any event it is clear that the crop is proving a much greater financial success than the south anticipated and that business prospects in that district are correspondingly improved.

A further decline in the reserve ratio of the federal reserve system adds banking confirmation to the evidence of growing trade and conforms to the usual seasonal movement. The ratio of the system as a whole now stands at 75.2 per cent which is 3.4 per cent above that of a year ago and which indicates an ample reserve supply of credit accommodation. The decline in the high point of the year amounts to only 5.2 per cent. No further increase occurred in the increase of money and the rate on call money on the New York stock exchange dropped at the end of the week to 3 1-2 per cent, the lowest figure since September. With regard to the foreign situation the opinion was held in financial quarters that political conditions were somewhat improved. The new government in England has been able to reach an agreement with France regarding a Turkish policy, which is considered a favorable sign. The reparations problem, however, remains to be adjusted and the opinion is held that a settlement will not be reached easily. Some observers consider that unless this situation is remedied, United States trade may be adversely affected during the coming year.

Stuhrman Ready For All Manner Contract Work

Closely identified with building operations in Atlanta and enjoying a reputation for only high-class work, which is assured the public in every instance, is Edward A. Stuhrman, general structural engineer and contractor, with offices in 757 Candler Annex.

Mr. Stuhrman is admirably equipped for his life work, being a graduate of Cooper institute, of New York, and the Columbia university school of applied sciences, this being followed by several years of practical experience as assistant civil engineer for the Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul railway, bridge and building department. His standing professionally is further attested by his membership in the American Society of Civil Engineers and the American Concrete institute, while he is also a licensed architect of Illinois, California and Louisiana, as well as a licensed structural engineer of Illinois.

Mr. Stuhrman's organization combines all the elements in civil and mechanical engineering necessary to carrying any building project through to completion. Associated with him is Mr. H. H. Dawson, mechanical engineer, who like Mr. Stuhrman enjoys a splendid reputation professionally.

The Zahner building at Peachtree and Tenth streets, recently completed, is a specimen of this organization's work. Mr. Stuhrman has general charge of construction at the new Wesley Memorial hospital at Emory university, and is beginning work on several store buildings at West Peachtree and Fourteenth streets, and the postoffice building at Emory, Ga.

"Let the Eagle Do It for You" Is Apt Slogan

If it's anything in multigraphing, the Eagle Multigraphing, Stamp and Seal company, 204-5 Austell building, is prepared to show that it can take care of any order, no matter how large, by handling the whole job—multigraphing, filling in, folding, addressing envelopes, stamping and mailing, relieving customers of any trouble or worry from the moment the work is placed in their hands.

The company has been in business over sixteen years and has established a large trade in Georgia, Florida, Alabama and the southeastern states generally in its various lines, embracing multigraphing, rubber stamps, seals, stencils and similar supplies. A printing attachment for the multigraphing machine enables the company to do commercial printing, especially corner cards for envelopes, and an electric folding machine folds letters in any fold desired. The Eagle also specializes in stamps for banks, and is prepared to take care of any kind of order of whatever nature coming under the scope of business handled by a multigraphing, stamp and seal concern.

"Let the Eagle do it for you" is the slogan of the company, of which H. A. Crane is the capable president and general manager. A business of this nature keeps well in touch with conditions throughout its territory, and according to Mr. Crane, the outlook was never brighter in this section.

This Concern Is Now Ready For Fall Fur Trade

According to J. H. Rodbell and his partner, Morris Cohen, doing business at 331-3 Peters street under the firm name, the Capitol Hide & Junk company, they are making special preparations to take care of the fall fur trade, paying the highest market prices prevailing for skins as well as for wool beeswax, tallow, iron and metals, throughout the year. Since the establishment of the business in 1913, it has grown rapidly and now covers the southeastern states and has connections with the northern and eastern markets.

"A fair and square deal to everybody" is its motto, and the firm lives up to it in its dealings with the public. All inquiries as to items coming under the head of their business will be given prompt and courteous attention.

"GOLF SERMON" CONGREGATION IS DISAPPOINTED

Maplewood, N. J., November 19.—Attendance was "very good" Sunday at St. George's Protestant Episcopal church, where the pastor, the Rev. Francis H. Richey, took up golf so that he could learn to address the people in their own language.

There are 15 golf clubs within a few miles of Maplewood and everybody in the locality plays the game.

Some people apparently went to church under the impression that the minister's series of golf sermons was to start. However, this was their mistake, as the first lesson from the links will be drawn in the pulpit next Sunday night.

"The evening is the best time for services," said Dr. Richey. "It gives the people all day to play. The church attendance was very good today. I suppose the attendance at the golf clubs was very good, too. It usually is. I didn't golf, though. Sunday is my busy day."

Chattooga Elections Set.

Summerville, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—An election will be held in Chattooga county on Saturday to name trustees for the various school districts of the county. A large number of vacancies caused by expiration of terms of present trustees are to be filled. Another election will be held December to choose constables for the different county districts.

Flower Show Planned.

Waycross, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Waycross is to have a flower show in the very near future, if present plans mature. The show is being sponsored by the various organizations of the city both civic and social, and a committee composed of one member appointed from each of the city organizations will have actual charge of the plans for the show and the holding of the show in Waycross.

Athens Delegates Named.

Athens, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Three Athenians have been appointed to attend the educational congress which meets in Richmond, Va., December 2 under the supervision of the Virginia Co-operative Educational association. They are Dr. Andrew M. Soule, president of the State college of Agriculture; D. T. J. Woofter, dean of the Peabody school of education of the University of Georgia, and Dr. Joseph S. Stewart, professor of secondary education at the university, and state supervisor of high schools.

Wanted---Two Husbands

—To save one. Young wife whose husband is in the clutches of two unscrupulous flappers desires to meet two bachelors between ages of twenty and forty. Object: Matrimony

BY INEZ KLUMPH

Illustrated by Marguerite Neale

WHO'S WHO AND WHAT'S HAPPENED.

Roger Moore, until he receives a letter announcing the impending visit of his cousin,

Monica and Lucile Lane. She resolves to make them so popular that she and Roger will see nothing of them. On the day of their arrival she is called to the home of her best friend,

Margaret Calhoun, who is having trouble with her flirtatious husband,

Bruce Calhoun. Roger goes alone to meet the girls, and when he fails to stop on the way home for Cynthia, she starts home alone.

CHAPTER VII—SERPENTS IN EDEN.

For a moment Cynthia could not move. She stood there in the doorway staring at her husband and the guests, unable to believe that it was really Roger who sat there on the couch. He rose and hurried across the room to her, eagerly explaining, but to Cynthia it seemed that his explanations were rather strained.

"And these are the girls, Monica and Lucile," he concluded, turning to them. They rose, and Monica languildly held out one hand to Cynthia. She was the taller of the two. She wore her red hair drawn back sleekly from her face and twisted into a roll at the back of her head, and her ear rings dangled almost to her shoulders. The hand which she gave Cynthia was heavy with rings, and the nails were so long and sharply pointed that they were like claws. Cynthia loathed her.

Lucile was smaller, a dainty, flippant thing, with black, bobbed hair and eyes that puckered at the corners when she smiled, as she did now. Cynthia turned to her rather dubiously, but Lucile threw her arms around her cousin and kissed her.

"Don't call me Lucile," she begged. "My nickname's much cuter. It's 'Baby' and I like it, don't you? Roger does."

Cynthia was wretchedly aware of Bruce Calhoun's quizzical smile. How amused he must be! "Baby"—and Roger liked it! He was introducing Bruce to the girls now, and Lucile sided over to him almost before the introductions were over.

Cynthia felt bewildered, as if someone had turned some strange animals from the zoo loose in her drawing room. She rang for tea, and went over to the low table that stood by the fireplace. She must me pleasant to the girls, she told herself, and make them feel at home. Then, looking at them, she realized that she need make no effort in that direction. Lucile had curled up on one end of the big davenport, with Bruce beside her; even now they were talking in low, confidential tones. And Monica, lolling back in a deep chair, was gazing into Roger's eyes and listening intently while he talked.

Cynthia felt curiously out of things. She fidgeted nervously until tea was brought, and then tried to learn her guests' preference. Monica asked if there was rum. On being told that there wasn't, she declared she didn't care for tea. Bruce regretted that he had no flask with him, and Cynthia yearned to hurl the teapot at the elder of her two guests. Lucile accepted a cup of tea but quite evidently had no intention of drinking it. Cynthia suspected her of having taken it only because she felt that it would make her hostess feel more comfortable if she did so, and I liked the girl for it. Roger manfully took some and drank it, though he detested tea, as Cynthia knew, and Bruce followed his example.

Roger tried to draw his wife into the conversation between himself and Monica, but not very successfully. She felt that she was a stranger in her own home, for the moment. Monica eyed her politlely and without interest. When Cynthia asked her what she wanted to see first in New York, she replied, "a shop where I can buy some decent clothes," and laughed as if she thought she had said something clever.

"Oh, so do I—but I want to see heaps of other things, too," Lucile declared and Cynthia picked up hope. She was about to suggest a trip to the Statue of Liberty when Lucile went on, "I want to go to all the dance clubs right away, and to the jazziest musical comedies, and the places down in the slums where the chorus girls have parties after the theater, and—oh, everywhere that's exciting."

"I'll show you this town as few girls have seen it," Bruce promised her. Cynthia sighed. Now there'd be less chance than ever of getting Bruce to forsake his ways and pay some attention to his wife!

MAKING YOUR BID

BY JOHN R. BOWKER

Today's Rule—Take finesse at late as possible.

Q.—What is an insufficient bid?

A.—It is a bid following any previous bid that is not higher.

Q.—I deal and pick up the following cards: 5 spades to the 10 spot; singleton 7 of hearts; ace, queen, 10, 6 of clubs. Should I bid a spade?

A.—No. The best would be a club. Then if your partner should overbid with a no-trump you can go back to two spades. This is what I call a secondary multiple bid.

Q.—What is the penalty for an insufficient bid?

A.—When either player calls attention to an insufficient bid the insufficient bidder must increase the number to make the bid sufficient and if the player on the left of the insufficient bidder passes the partner of the insufficient bidder must pass and may not re-enter the bidding unlesss an opponent subsequently bids or doubles.

Q.—My partner bids 1 no-trump and it is passed around to me. My hand is very por, the longest suit being 5 diamonds to the 10-spot and no other face cards. Should I take it out in diamonds?

A.—No. You are increasing the contract and besides exposing that you are very weak, so that if your partner should switch to another suit the opponents can attack you in a weak spot.

Q.—I bid a no-trump holding ace, queen, 9, 6 of spades; ace, jack, 9, 7, 6 of hearts; king, 10 diamonds; king and 6 of clubs. My partner overbids with 2 diamonds. Should I let it stand?

A.—No. Partner having shown weakness I would overbid with 2 hearts as your hearts must be metter than partner's diamonds.

John R. Bowker will answer any questions on auction our readers mail him. Be sure to enclose stamped return envelope. Address: John R. Bowker, The Atlanta Constitution.

How to Grow Bulbs

By Mrs. E. P. CRENSHAW

THE HYACINTH.

Pagan mythology has left its mark on our name in many ways. The days of the week and the months of the year have a large share of these pagan names. Thursday is named for "Thor," the god of strength, and January is named for Janus, the two-faced god who guarded the gates of Rome. Even our Christian celebration of Easter derived its name from Eastre, a Saxon goddess whose celebration was observed about the same time as Easter.

When we come to the flora of the world, we find mythology playing a great part in giving names to the most beautiful flowers. The hyacinth derives its name from a fable. Hyancinthus, a Spartan youth, was greatly beloved by Apollo and while he was playing a game of chance, Zephyrus blew the quoits with such force as to kill him. Apollo unable to restore his life caused the flower that bears his name to spring up in his blood.

This is a tragic beginning of our stately and orderly hyacinth but it has not affected its beauty in the least. These flowers are more effective when planted in masses. Unlike the narcissus they require cultivation and ask for much in the way of food and water.

They stand our sudden changes of climate well if only a light dressing of manure and leaves are left on all winter. Winter is the time to fertilize for they resent it in the spring when blooms are forming. With all their good points the hyacinth has one very bad one—they do not travel well as the florist say. They cannot be shipped to any great distance because the blooms easily become bruised and limp.

They are a joy when forced indoors in pots of moderately rich dirt or in bowls of water the Chinese way. After planting in pots or placing in bowls of water they must be put away three or four weeks in a dark closet or cellar for roots to form. After this sleep period, bring out to your sunny window and keep well watered.

When blooms come keep in a cool place out of the sun. The Roman hyacinth is an old stand-by and always gives good results. They can be forced indoors and will bloom by Christmas or they can be planted out doors where they will bloom almost as early as the crocus. They are single blooms but make up for this by giving a great quantity of them.

The Dutch hyacinths are in many glorious colors and are single or double belled. There are many named varieties but as they are all good I am advising buying the colors you like best. You can buy some color to harmonize with the furnishings of your living room and in this way add much to your pleasure during winter.

A Hint for the Bride.

If you are just accumulating your kitchen utensils, take a tip from an old housekeeper. There is no pot for potroasting like the iron "Dutch oven" of your grandmother's time. It has an iron lid that fits tightly and retains the savoriness of the meat you are cooking as no other kettle does.

BEAUTY CHATS

By Edna K. Forbes

TO EXPECTANT MOTHERS

Expectant young mothers need beauty advice more than anyone else and get less of it. I don't in the least see why the young mother shouldn't keep herself beautiful through this brief but important period before the baby arrives. Certainly it would be a great comfort to her to know that she is looking unusually well in some ways even if she is not up to normal in others.

Here are a few comforting things to think about—the young mother may be below good health in some ways, but throughout the months before the baby comes she will be curiously immune from most diseases. This is a wise provision of nature to insure the life and health of the future child. This doesn't mean, however, that she should be careless about her health. She will not be entirely immune and she will be peculiarly susceptible to influenza.

If she is temporarily losing her figure she is improving her complexion, an improvement she can make permanent by good care now and after the baby comes. If she begins to lose her hair she can comfort herself by the fact that this also is temporarily, if she takes good care of the scalp by massage and a proper hair tonic.

If she wishes to keep her figure looking well during this period and to preserve its young lines afterwards, she must wear the proper sort of corset or belt; also, and this is most important if she wishes to make the skin that has stretched look nice again after the baby is born, she should rub breasts and abdomen with olive oil—once a week the first three months, twice a week for two more, and finally every day. This makes the skin more elastic and more comfortable, and should make it smooth afterwards.

Lillian.—It is best not to make up a large quantity of any mixture in which there is lemon juice, unless there is some ingredient therein that will act as a preservative. In the mixture of lemon juice and rose water, a few drops of benzoin will help to keep the mixture sweet and also assist in the bleaching.

M. C. T.—As you are 15 pounds overweight, a reduction to normal would improve your health and do much toward relieving your skin of its excessive oiliness. You should be taking less food containing fat and also less of the heating foods. All of these have such a tendency to clog the system that the skin must naturally be overworked in order to keep the body cleared of impurities.

Expectant mothers need beauty advice.

Tomorrow—Answered Letters.

All inquiries addressed to Miss Forbes in care of the "Beauty Chats" department will be answered in these columns in their turn. This requires considerable time, however, owing to the great number received. So if a personal or quicker reply is desired, a stamped and self-addressed envelope must be enclosed with the question.—The Editor.

"Confederate White House" Visited By U. D. C.'s Sunday

Montgomery, Ala., November 19.—Between 40 and 50 delegates to the United Daughters of the Confederacy convention in Birmingham journeyed from that city here today for the purpose of visiting the "first white house of the confederacy," the historic Alabama state capitol and other points of interest in the "cradle of the confederacy."

The visiting U. D. C.'s were met at the train by city officials, members of the Montgomery U. D. C. chapters and members of the white house association, and were taken immediately to "the white house of the confederacy," the home of Jefferson Davis, the first and only president of the Confederate States of America. The greater part of the afternoon was spent at the white house, where addresses were delivered and an appropriate program given.

Ray Rushton, of Montgomery, designated to do so by Mayor W. A. Gunter, Jr., delivered the address of welcome. The principal address was deliveerd by Mrs. Lenora St. George Rogers Schuyler, of New York, formerly of Florida, and president general of the United Daughters of the Confederacy, who was presented by Mrs. John Tilley, of Montgomery, as "the greatest confederate woman in the world today."

Other daughters of the confederacy who spoke were Mrs. Chappell Cory, of Birmingham, regent of the White House association; Miss Pauline Hausman, of Montgomery; Mrs. Paul Smith, of Montgomery; Mrs. Allen McCaskell Kimbrough, of Mississippi, and Mrs. Frank Anthony Walks, of Norfolk, Va.

The visiting U. D. C.'s seemed greatly interested in the spot where stood the now famous Roosevelt Memorial tree to which the Daughters of the Confederacy so strenuously objected. The objection was that the tree was planted on the capitol grounds, a spot sacred to the memory of the southern cause.

Before departing for Birmingham the visitors took tea with Mrs. Thomas E. Kilby at the governor's mansion.

East Atlanta Social News.

About 40 children were present.

A brilliant social affair of Saturday afternoon, November 11, was a miscellaneous shower given at the home of Mrs. F. M. Marlin, in Ormewood avenue in honor of Miss Marion Cook, a bride-elect. Mrs. Martin and Mrs. J. L. French were joint hostesses.

Mrs. W. P. Estes and Miss Ruth Martin assisted in receiving and entertaining.

The last of the guests to arrive was the honor guest, who entered following little Helen Martin and Marion Estes, dressed as bride and groom.

The bride's book was kept by Miss Mary Martin. Miss Annie Cook sang "I Love You."

A harp and piano duet by Mrs. Cook and P. T. Waits was enjoyed. About 50 guests were present.

Mrs. J. J. Harden was hostess at a matinee party at the Lyric theater Thursday afternoon, honoring the members of the Busy Bee club. After the matinee, refreshments were served at Nunnally's.

Miss Ruth Martin entertained at 6 o'clock dinner at her home on Ormewood avenue Saturday evening, November 11, in honor of Miss Marion Cook, a bride-elect of November 25.

Mrs. C. C. Crabill, Mrs. W. B. Owens, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Owens and William Organ were week-end guests of Dr. and Mrs. J. I. Wilson, of Columbus.

Mrs. H. O. Graddy, of West End, was the guest of Mrs. John Faith Wednesday.

Miss Mary Cook entertained at a theater party Friday evening, November 9, in honor of Miss Marion Cook, a bride-elect.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Carroll were recent guests of relatives in Palmetto.

Mrs. J. W. Cartwright had as her guests the past week Misses Katie and Maisie Lewis and John Neese, of Alpharetta, and Miss Lulu Cartwright, of Temple.

Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Durham, formerly of South Moreland, are residing on LaFrance street.

Miss Ruth Norris, of Decatur, visited Mrs. B. C. Starrett the past week.

Mrs. James L. Keen, of Dublin, will be the guest of Mrs. J. L. Veal the coming week.

K. L. Strickland, of Chicago, who has been the guest of his sister, Mrs. W. T. Herrin, returned home Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. E. Q. Hollingsworth, Mrs. S. F. Bowden and William Montgomery visited in Conyers Wednesday.

Cox College Social Notes.

A most interesting and unique program of current events will be presented by the class in expression and oral English of Cox college under the direction of Miss Corlotta P. Mitchell in the college auditorium on Tuesday evening, November 21, at 8:15 o'clock.

The program will open with a one-act farce, entitled "A Bit of News." After this the special Sunday edition of a live up-to-the-minute Atlanta newspaper will be read from living columns; the various sections of the paper, news, society, radio, editorials, etc., will be represented as large as life, not to mention the walking advertisements. The program will close with a gossip pantomime, "All About It."

The members of the Cox college Alumnae association and of the College Park Woman's club will be honor guests of the occasion.

The following girls will take part in the program: Misses Gladys Mallory, Rosalyn Cox, Margaret Dean, Mildred Holt, Louise Wilson, Dorothy Hunt, Louise Brittain; Janet Spaugh, Erma Kinney, Annie Holt Terrell, Fay Spinks, Susie Mae Snooks, Kathleen Burns, Ruth Henley, Clara Neville, Marjorie Waters, Sarah Webb, Amber Lee, Dana Bird Pell, Sarah Simmons and Ruth Lee.

The ushers will be Misses Alline Greene, Leslye Baker, Elizabeth Spaugh and Elizabeth Shreve.

Elizabeth Mather Social Notes.

The speaker of the morning on Thursday at chapel was Charles Frederick Naegele, the distinguished southern portrait painter, for 27 years a resident of New York city and recently a citizen of Marietta, Georgia.

Mr. Naegele discussed the meaning, possibilities and scope of art and showed how the south could come into possession of real works of art. Some of his talk was illustrated at the blackboard.

CHURCH FOR TYBEE IS NOW PROPOSED

Savannah, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Plans were announced today by churches of Protestant order for the erection soon of a Protestant chapel at Tybee, there being no church on the island now except a Catholic mission. It is announced, too, that the Episcopal church will build a chapel at the Isle of Hope at an early date.

HOUSEHOLD SUGGESTIONS

Dusty Carpet.

A slightly dampened broom is best for sweeping carpet that is very dusty. It will clean the carpet and keep the dust from flying.

Keeping the Brass in Condition.

The Worn Tablecloth.

Very frequently the tablecloth will wear out in such a manner that doilies may be cut from it, bringing a pattern in the center. A simple crocheted edge around these and you have dainty doilies for ordinary use.

RELIGION IS WORN ON UMBRELLA TIPS

If you live according to the creed called style, then you, my dear, must carry your religion about with you for the very latest stylistic dictum proclaims the fashion fitness of the new umbrellas whose handles are composed of ivory Chinese gods with a separate god to match finishing off each spoke of the frame.

THE HOME IN GOOD TASTE

By Harold Donaldson Eberlein

No. 139—Architecture and Comfort.

In planning to build a house it is best by far to consider seriously how many you wish to house beneath your roof, how much entertaining you wish to do, what service you expect to have, and what furniture you will use, before you decide on the style of architecture you will adopt for your house.

Many people build their houses to conform to an ideal—Dutch Colonial, Georgian, Spanish or French—which may appeal to them, and then find that it does not suit their furniture or their real needs.

The most successful house is the logical house—one with space for the things dear to the family who are to live in it. If the family caers more for entertaining, dances, dining, cards, even impromptu plays, the dining and reception roms are most important, and should be so planned as to open into each other and so furnished as to be easily available for dancing or theatricals. If, on the other hand, music is the chief interest, the music room, with its piano, should dominate the house. If books are the family's joy the library may take precedence and the reception room be reduced to a place where people may be received without disturbing the studious members of the family.

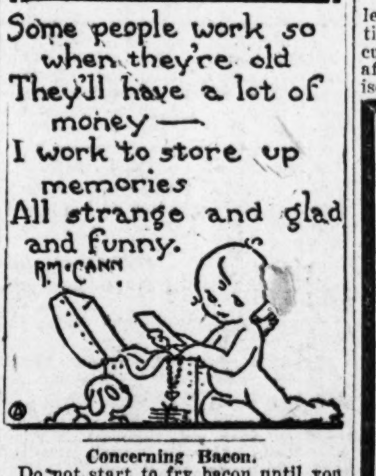
THE CHEERFUL CHERUB



Concerning Bacon.

Do not start to fry bacon until you can give it your undivided attention as it will not cook evenly if allowed to cook haphazard. If you prefer very crisp bacon, the fat must be poured off as it cooks out.

The INVISIBLE HUSBAND

By Marguerite Hurtery

Author of "Busy Eyes"

Read this, then go on with the story: Deborah Lynch, a young, unsophisticated girl, leaves her job in a fashionable shop to take a place in the movies. Told that a girl who is married is less bothered by admirers than others, she introduces herself as "Mrs. Deborah Demarest." It just happens that she picks as the name of her "invisible husband" that borne by

Larry Demarest, the fascinating leading man of the company. Demarest is quite impressed by Deb's beauty and his interest arouses the jealousy of Phylisa Gay, the temperamental star of the company. While on location, in the north, Miss Gay surprises Demarest making love to Deb and Larry gallantly declares that he and Deborah are engaged.

Finkenberg, the backer of the company, shows signs of letting his interest in Miss Gay be superseded by his interest in the charming little Deb. While the rest of the company is "shooting" scenes in the mountains, he takes her on a canoe trip, telling her they will join the others. Night overtakes them and Finkenberg leads Deborah to a luxurious hunting lodge where

Oliver, the owner of the property and a friend of Finkenberg. The situation is more than unpleasant to Deb. She runs away from the lodge, becomes lost in the woods and is found next day by Larry, who brings the startling news that Finkenberg has been murdered. Deborah is terrified into illness by the circumstances which seem to implicate her in his death.

Johnny, a former chorus girl and now member of the movie company, is a friend of Deb's, and takes much interest in solving the mystery of the murder.

Probing the Servant.

"Was it raining when you started for the village?" Larry was asking Frank, whose face under its servile mask was beginning to grow uneasy with the inquisition. Abernathy, a detective, was smoking a cigar in a manner that indicated impatience. He changed Larry's question:

"The time, sir?"

"Yes, you heard me—the time"

"I really cannot say, sir. Early evening. I didn't look at the clock."

"Was it raining?" Larry questioned again.

"Well, you'd have known it in that storm. You got away before the storm then? Must have caught you on the road—where did you seek refuge?"

"Why—under the trees. I was in the delivery auto. I put up the top. Why do you ask me?"

"Because," Larry remarked pointedly. "I am trying to compare your statements with the young lady's account of her arrival at the lodge. What time was it when she arrived with Finkenberg, can you remember?"

"They asked to be served a meal, is that right? And wasn't it just about six-thirty?"

"Yes, yes, I guess that's about the time it was, sir."

"No, sir."

"Did you have provisions in the house sufficient to serve, or did you have to go to the village to purchase food?"

Frank hesitated for a second and then muttered, "I had enough to prepare a light supper."

The detective shot a glance at Larry. Then the questions that followed were so quick and clever that before Frank realized he had contracdicted himself over and over again.

"Didn't you fry chicken and prepare salad and ice cream?" Larry reminded. "Do you call that a light supper? You went to considerable pains, didn't you?"

"Well, yes, I did, sir."

"You say he ordered you to go before dinner and leave him alone with the girl?" the detective repeated.

"Yes—yes, that's it," Frank confirmed quickly. "He told me to stay away all night and come back in the morning—with the things."

"And you left before it started to rain—before the storm?" Larry persisted again. The servant nodded, then rather uncertainly added, "That is, it was just beginning to——"

The detective lit another cigar . . . Then he sat down before the fireplace and kicked out his heels as though the doubt that had prompted these questions was now sufficiently satisfied.

"That'll do," he dismissed. Frank left the room, but another man stationed outside the door took him in custody. Enough had been heard after Deborah's testimony to promise an indictment against the fellow. Like all followers of Sherlock Holmes, Abernathy began to unravel his evidence—

"Let him try and answer those questions again—before a jury! He's lying and too stopid to refuse to talk . . . He's tangled! You needn't worry about the girl any more. They arrived at 6:30—and this servant claims to have prepared a chicken dinner, complete from soup to nuts! He couldn't have finished the job and left the house before 7 o'clock! In other words, he couldn't have left before the storm."

"That's exactly what I told you!" Larry interrupted. He was rather irritated at the manner in which the detective took credit for the turn which was absolutely Larrys' own clue, based on Johnnie's remark about the two dinners left uneaten on a tray in the pantry."

Larry lit a cigarette and brooded silently for a few minutes. Then he spoke up briskly.

"I don't believe Frank shot Finkenberg . . . but I believe he knows who did. He's shielding someone! You can tell it in his eyes—hurt—scared—like a frightened rabbit he is! But not guilty! I've studied emotions too long in movies, not to be able to detect a villain when I see one. Frank is innocent."

"Good Lord, man!" the detective sneered. "What are you trying to do? This man is our only chance to get the girl clear, and yet you make a play for his innocence . . . Who else could have done it? Who could he be shielding"

"I don't know," Larry admitted. "But why should Frank shoot Finkenberg? He didn't rob him . . . the money was left safe! Another thing, the shot came from behind—someone from the door! The watch in Finkenberg's vest pocket was stopped at 6:45. It happened before the storm. Frank had time enough to get the car and get away before the rain started . . . that's just what he said. I believe him. But he wasn't alone!"

"You still think the girl—?" the detective ventured suspiciously. "She might have done it in self-defense, and tried to get her away—he hid her in the woods!"

"Bah! Don't be a fool," Larry grunted. "Why should he let her go off in the woods to starve and freeze—without a cloak or provisions? No—she jumped out of the window. That's straight."

"Then who—?" Abernathy taunted, but Larry analyzed seriously:

"Figure out why Frank prepared that chicken dinner and who he expected to eat it! He couldn't have made ice cream, salad, fried chicken and an oyster pot pie in 30 minutes. That meal was planned. He says Finkenberg was not expected. Another guest was already in that house—or expected . . . A woman!"

MAN TO MAN

BY JACKSON GREGORY

Next Week, "Madame Who"
By Harold MacGrath

"Grandfather," he said slowly, "suppose we take a little more time in getting squared around? I want to do what's right! I am willing to consult you about ranch matters; I'll try to keep the ranch up to time and"—with a smile—"in my hands and out of yours. That's a good sporting proposition. But as for Blenham—"

"Put him back as foreman and I'll talk fair with you. I want Blenham back here, Stephen. Understand that?"

"And," cried Steve a trifle heatedly at last, "I tell you that I am going to run the ranch myself. And that I don't like Blenham."

"Thanks," said Steve dryly. "I've heard that before."

"An' you'll hear it again, by the Lord! In ten languages if you'll find men talkin' that many lingos. Here I come chasin' all this way to be decent to you, to see if there ain't some way to help you out—"

"Help me out of my property," amended Steve. "I can't remember anything else you offered to do for me!"

"I said it once," shouted his grandfather, his two big fists suddenly clinched and lifted threateningly; you're a howlin' young ass! I'll make you stick your tail between your legs an' howl like a kiote before I'm done with you!"

Steve looked at him hopelessly; he might have expected this all along though he had hoped for amity at least.

"I am sorry you look at it that way, Grandy. It is only natural that I should seek to hold what is mine."

"Then hold your tongue, you young fool!" blazed out the old man. "But don't ask me to hold my hand! I'm goin' after you tooth and big toenail! If Ranch Number Ten ain't mine in all partic'lars before you're a year older I want to know why! Guy Little! Goin' to stay under that car all day?"

The mechanician promptly appeared, hands and face greasy and black, and took his place on the running-board.

Three times before they shot back into the mouth of Blue Bird Canon the mechanician fancied that his employer had spoken; each time listening, he failed to catch any other sound than that made by the engine and speeding wheels. Twice he said "Sir?" and got only silence for an answer.

"Talkin' to me?" called Little the third time.

The little town of Red Creek gave the impression, not in the least incorrect, of falling apart into two watchful sections which eyed each other suspiciously. Down the middle of its main street, like a border line between two hostile camps, sprawled a stream which shared its name with the town.

The northern half of Red Creek was usually and significantly known as Packard's Town; the southern half sold liquor and merchandise, offered food and lodging, to men who harbored few friendly feelings for Packard's "crowd."

Hence, in Red Creek were two saloons, confronting each other across the red scar of the creek; two stores, two lunch-counters, two blacksmith shops, each eyeing its rival jealously.

Steven Packard rode into town in the late afternoon, his motive clear-cut, his need urgent. If Blenham had stolen his ten thousand dollars for which he had so imperative a call now, then Blenham had been the one who had replaced the large banknotes with the small; there was the chance that Blenham, just a week ago tonight, had gotten the dollar bills in Red Creek. If such were the case Packard meant to know it.

"There are things, Barbee," he had said bluntly, "which I can't tell you yet. Here's one point though, which it's up to you to know; I very much suspect that for reasons of his own Blenham hasn't set foot for the last time on Ranch Number Ten. He'll come back; he'll come snooping around at night; he'll perhaps have a way of knowing the first night I'm away and come then. There's something he left there that he wants. If Blenham shows up, throw a gun on him and run him out! The quickest way."

Then Packard had learned that Blenham had his friends in "Packard's Town" where Dan Hodges of the Ace of Diamonds saloon was an old pal and that "Whitey" Wimble, of the Old Trusty saloon across the street, hated both Hodges and Blenham like poison.

"Us boys," added Barbee, "always hung out at the Ace of Diamonds, bein' Packard's men. After now, when I go on a rampage, I'm goin' to make friends across the street. Friends sometimes comes in handy in Red Creek," he added smilingly.

* * *

The road, as one comes into Red Creek from the east, divides at the first bridge, one fork becoming the northern half of the intersected street, the other the southern half. Steve Packard, filling his eyes with the two rows of similar shacks, hesitated briefly. He had glimpsed at the far end of the street the incongruous lines of an automobile—red racing type.

"So we'll meet on the same side after all, Miss Terry!" he said to himself.

He saw Terry, jauntily, even saucily dressed, as she came out of the store and jumped into her car.

There was a faint shadow of regret in his eyes as she let in the clutch and whizzed away. She was headed down the street, her back to him, driving toward the remote railroad station.

"Going away?" he wondered. "Or just meeting some one?"

But he had come into Red Creek on a business in no way connected with Terry Temple.

He had figured it out that Blenham (if it had been Blenham who had chanced on Bill Royce's secret and no longer ago than last Saturday night), would have wasted no time in acquiring the one-dollar bills for his trick of substitution.

He entered the Ace of Diamonds.

"Hello, stranger," offered Hodges, the proprietor. "What's the word?"

"Know Blenham, don't you?" asked Steve.

"Sure, I know him. What about him?"

Hodges laughed.

Steve wanted suddenly to slap his broad, ugly face. Since, however, he could formulate no logically sufficient reason for the act, he said instead:

"Maybe I'll see him before I pull out. If I don't ask him if he lost a wad like this?"

"One-dollar bills?" asked Hodges. "Ten of 'em?"

"Well, you're right about the wad bein' Blenham's. Leave it with me, if you want. Blenham didn't say he los' nothin'. But I know it's his because he got most of them bills from me."

"Tell me when," said Packard, "and I'll leave them with you."

"There's the money. Tell Blenham I thought it was his!"

"What name, stranger?" asked Hodges.

And Dan Hodges, dull of wit that he was, felt that something was wrong. The look in the stranger's eyes had altered swiftly, the eyes had grown hard.

Steve went slowly back to his horse. What, he pondered, would Blenham do, what would he say when Hodges gave him Packard's message? Might he, in an unguarded moment, give a hint toward the answer of that other question which now had become the only consideration: "Were the larger bank notes still hidden at ranch No. 10 or had Blenham already removed them?"

Instead of mounting to ride away, Packard hung his spurs upon his saddlehorn and turned again into the Ace of Diamonds.

"Hi, Blenham!" called big Joe Woods, "Hell Roarin'" Packard's timber foreman. "Have a drink."

"No," growled Blenham. "I don't want it. I—"

His eyes, lifted to the lumber camp boss, passed on and rested on Steve Packard. He broke off abruptly, his look changing, probing, seeming full of question.

"Get the money I gave Hodges for you?" asked Packard. "The ten one-dollar bills you left behind you?"

"They wasn't mine," said Blenham, his manner vaguely nervous. "I tol' Dan to give 'em back to you."

"Funny," Steve said carelessly. "Hodges said—"

"I made a mistake," called Hodges sharply. "I got Blenham mixed up with some other guy. I don't know nothin' about this here." Packard promptly stepped forward, taking the money.

"I figured there was a chance to make $10, easy money, if I just walked across the street for it," he said, looking pleasantly from Hodges to Blenham. "Sure, I want it. It's luck money; didn't you know? You see, when a man loses anything he loses some of his luck with it; when another man gets it, he gets the luck along with it. Thanks, Blenham."

At the rear of the long room a man was dealing cards for seven-and-a-half. As though to demonstrate the truth of his boast about "luck money" Steve promptly stepped to the table, the roll of bills in his hand. He was dealt a card. Without turning it up to look at it he shoved it under the ten banknotes.

Steve nodded.

The dealer turned lack-luster eyes upon Steve's card, then upon his own which he turned up. It was the four of clubs.

He turned another, a deuce.

"That'll about beat you," he suggested. He leaned forward for Steve's card. "Unless you've got a seven in the hole."

And a seven it was. The dealer paid $10 to Steve's ten.

"Come again?" he asked.

He turned and saw that Blenham had already slipped quietly out of the room. With him was the timber boss.

"Tin-horn!" shouted Joe Woods at Packard. "Quitter!"

A quick joy spurted up in Steve Packard's heart, he was right about Blenham. Blenham, filled with anxiety, had gone already, would be rushing back to Ranch No. 10 to make sure if the $10,000 were safe or had been discovered already by the rightful owner. He had slipped away hurriedly but, after the fashion of a careful, practical man, had commissioned Joe Woods to hold Packard here. And so, though he could not remember of having ever run away from a fight before, Steve Packard was strongly of that mind right now.

"Joe Woods, I believe?" he said coolly. "I was planning on riding out tomorrow for a word with you, Woods."

"So?" cried Woods. "What's the matter with havin' that word tonight?"

"Haven't time," was the simple rejoinder.

There is always the word to snare a man's caution out of him and inject fury in its stead, and Joe Woods put his tongue to it. On the instant Packard gave over thought of such side issues as a man named Blenham and hidden banknotes.

He cried out inarticulately and leaped forward and struck. Joe Woods reeled under the first blow full in the face, staggered under the second, and was borne back into the tight-jammed crowd of his followers.

Packard's attack had been swift and sure and not without a certain skill; against it Woods opposed all he had, ponderous strength, slow-moving, brutal force, broad-backed, deep-chested endurance. But from the first it was clear to all who watched and was suspected by Woods himself that he had chosen the wrong man.

It was a bleeding fist driven into Joe Woods' throbbing throat, followed by the other fist, going piston-like, at Joe Woods' stomach, that ended the fight.

The bigger man crumpled and went down slowly like one of his own trees just toppling, and lay staring up into Packard's face with dull eyes. Steve stepped over him, going to the door.

"I'll see you in the morning, Woods," he panted.

But again boots were shuffling on the floor and already several men, Dan Hodges among them, were between him and the door. It dawned upon him that Blenham must have given emphatic orders and that Blenham had the trick of exacting obedience.

"Hold him here," shouted Hodges, and being a man of little spirit he withdrew hastily under Steve's eyes, thrusting another man in front of him. "Keep him for the sheriff. Startin' a fight in my place—it's disturbin' the peace, that's what it is! I won't stand it!"

Packard drew back two or three paces, his eyes narrowing. At that instant he was sure of what he saw in the faces of at least three of the men confronting him; they were going to rush him together.

But now Joe Woods was on his feet again. Packard drew back, getting the wall behind him. And then came a diversion. It was Joe Woods speaking heavily:

"I fought him fair an' he licked me. Think I'm the kind of a she-man as stands for you guys buttin' in on my fight? Stand back an' let him go!"

"Blenham said—" screamed Hodges.

"Damn Blenham an' you, too," growled Woods. "It's my fight an' his. Let him go!"

They let him go, drawing apart slowly. With watchful eyes Steve passed down the little lane they made. At the door he turned, saying briefly:

"I'll see you in the morning, Woods!"

Then he went out, telephoned Barbee that Blenham was on his way to No. 10.

"Let him nose around and find what he wants; then get him with the goods on," he instructed. "Shoot the legs from under him if you must, but stop him, sure!"

Near the Old Trusty saloon he had tied his horse. Now it was gone—some one. Blenham he was sure, had severed the tie rope.

Steve lost more time trying to borrow another horse. Once on his way and a little more than half the distance, he heard a rifle-shot, startlingly loud; saw the spit of flame from just yonder, perhaps ten feet away; felt the animal plunge under him, and sink.

He slipped out of the saddle as the horse crashed down in the bushes at the side of the road and as he did so emptied his revolver into the shadows whence had come the rifle-shot. But he knew that he was a fool to hope to hit; the man of course had escaped.

"Not Blenham himself but one of his crowd did that," muttered Packard as he turned back to the fallen horse. "Just to set me on foot again."

Auburn Led South in Causing Gridiron Upsets

Hail Present Tiger Team As Greatest Since 1913; Other Results Reviewed

Auburn, Vanderbilt, North Carolina, Georgia Tech Are Only Southern Teams in Running for Sectional Title.

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Auburn Plainsmen, who swept the doughty Centre Colonels from their pinacle of football fame Saturday in one of the cleanest and hardest fought games of the season, are being hailed as the greatest eleven that has represented Alabama Polytechnic institute since 1913-14.

It was the first time in two years that the spectacular Centre team had met defeat by a southern rival and the Kentuckians' downfall came in Birmingham, where in 1915 the Vanderbilt Commodores robbed Auburn of its well-nigh undisputed leadership of those days by a 17 to 0 victory, and administered Auburn's first defeat in two years.

The day's play that saw Moulton fall on a blocked punt for the winning touchdown and the Plainsmen line outcharge the Colonels' forwards and prevent Covington getting away with his dropkicks that might have spelled victory, left but four teams with no defeats that would affect their southern ranking. Auburn remains one of them and the others are Vanderbilt, which downed its ancient rival, Georgia, 12 to 0; North Carolina, which clearly outplayed Davidson, 29 to 6, and Georgia Tech, which defeated North Carolina State, 17 to 0.

None of the triumphant four plays again until Thanksgiving day brings the season to a close. On that day when all go into battles around which time has cast a glamor of football romance, for Auburn's Plainsmen meet Georgia Tech; Vanderbilt takes on Sewanee, and North Carolina goes against Virginia university.

Easy for Vandy.

The Vanderbilt Commodores, who have emerged victors in every game this year, would appear certain of repeating, but North Carolina and Auburn, although ranked by many as the favorites, will be forced to bring into play everything that courage, strength and coaching produces to hold their places.

Supporters of the Plainsmen are contending that Saturday's victory over Centre was no surprise to students of current gridiron history, pointing out that the Colonels had been scored upon frequently this year as compared to last season, and that the Plainsmen had shown themselves to be one of the most effective gridiron machines in the country, aside from that, however, the day was not without its upsets. One of these was the manner in which Kentucky turned back, 6 to 0, Alabama university's team which had inflicted defeat upon Pennsylvania's great eleven. Another was Virginia Tech's decisive score of 41 to 6 over Washington and Lee.

Florida's 27 to 6 victory over Tulane added to the string of 'Gator victories for the year and was not unexpected to those who have watched the development of the team; Virginia put up a strong game against the hardy mountaineers from West Virginia but went down 13 to 0; North Carolina, although set back approximately 150 yards by penalties, downed Davidson by wonderful line work which aided its fleet backs; Tennessee rolled up 18 to 7 against Sewanee and other favorites came through in handy fashion.

Scene of Constitution's Tourneys Shifts to East Lake; Many Enter

Beautiful Trophies Offered Feminine Golfers of This Club—Will Start at 9 O'Clock.

BY MRS. CLARENCE BRADLEY.

The feminine golfers of the East Lake Country club will qualify this morning at 9 o'clock in The Constitution's tournament which will be held at that club the first four days of this week. A large number have already registered and enough to fill four or more flights are expected to qualify.

In the nine hole or baby flight the golfers will use the first side and all the entrants are privileged to play around the lake on the long nine hole if they care to. This will eliminate one of the dreaded water hazards. The short water hazard on number six is easy.

The beautiful trophies The Constitution offers for the winners of the eighteen and inne hole flights will be on display at the club this afternoon, also the trophies for the low gross and the low net of the qualifying rounds in both flights.

Ideal for Golf.

The weather man has promised the golfers a rainless day and with the wonderful condition of the greens and fairways everything seems to be ideal for golf.

The officials of East Lake request the golfers to qualify in the morning if possible, but the course will be open for that purpose the entire day.

Those who have registered are as follows: Mrs. D. M. Dickinson, Mrs. D. W. Ormsbee, Mrs. Thomas B. Paine, Mrs. Cyrus Strickler, Mrs. L. H. Beck, Miss Jimmie Pattillo, Mrs. Lois F. Neer, Mrs. Clarence Bradley, Mrs. Rosalie Mayer, Mrs. Dozier Lowndes, Mrs. Henry Clay Burr, Mrs. Charles M. Sciple, Mrs. Guy King, Mrs. Charles Collier, Mrs. Joe Ness, Mrs. R. L. Hardman, Mrs. Thomas B. Latham, Mrs. R. M. Calloway, Mrs. J. E. Jagoe, Miss Ida Cook, Mrs. Ed Byrne, Mrs. Fred Forester, Miss Nora Hannah, Mrs. Nash Broyles, Miss Douglass Paine and Mrs. Robert P. Jones.

WARRENTON WINS GAME

Warrenton, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Warrenton High school defeated Batesburg-Leesville High school of South Carolina 13 to 7 here recently in the hardest fought and fiercest football game of the season. Batesburg came to Warrenton with about the best record in South Carolina having defeated Columbia High and Lee Rhame's Florence team.

Warrenton, by the aid of superior linebucking of Johnson and Anchors, scored both touchdowns in the first quarter, literally sweeping the heavy and fast South Carolinans off their feet. In the second half Batesburg outplayed Warrenton in every department of the game but were unable to score but once. Snyder, who ran the visiting team, was the best back seen in Warrenton in years. He weighs about 180, is fast and has a remarkable knowledge of how to run his team. He made gain after gain through the left side of Warrenton's line.

McManaway, old Furman star, is the Batesburg coach, and he has taught his team how to play the best football ever displayed on the Warrenton gridiron. Giles, playing left guard for Warrenton, was the defensive star, and Waller, Anchors and Johnson were strong on the Boll Weevil offense.

Trophies Given at Ansley Park

BIG UPHEAVAL FOR S. I. A. A.

Chattanooga, Tenn., November 19. (Special.)—Hint of a coming upheaval in the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association came last night out of a gathering of the local alumni of Sewanee, following the Sewanee-Tennessee game. Sewanee officials announced that they were definitely committed to the one year rule, that they were convinced it would operate for the best interests of their school in the long run and that they would continue to play colleges under that system.

The stand of the school officials was given enthusiastic indorsement by local alumni, who stated that Sewanee must hold its place in the front line of football teams at all hazards and subscribe to all rules needed to keep football on the highest plane.

While no reference was made to it, the agreement under which Birmingham-Southern, University of Chattanooga, Mercer university and Oglethorpe university are playing freshmen in their games against each other will be in the limelight at the next meeting of the association, whether brought up by these teams or by other teams in the conference.

Break Must Come.

It is regarded inevitable that some sort of break will occur, either those teams which are not playing freshmen breaking company with those who do play freshmen, or the latter seceding from the association, and requesting to be permitted to play association members and use freshmen. Some are even predicting that the S. I. A. A. will be disolved, that those teams which can enforce the one year rule without crippling their athletics will all join the conference and the remainder form a new association.

University of Chattanooga suggested a movement last winter it will be remembered, for the four schools named and a few others secede from the S. I. A. A. and got considerable encouragement in correspondence. The local institution, while its athletes are scrupulously clean so far as giving inducements to athletes and maintaining scholarship standards are concerned, has found it quite impossible to proceed without freshmen this year with any degree of satisfaction.

Playing their freshmen, the Moccasins tied Birmingham and defeated Mercer without their freshmen, Saturday, they lost to Georgetown, a team far inferior to the other two.

WAYCROSS HI LOSES GAME

Waycross Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter, Glynn academy, of Brunswick, was able Friday afternoon to chalk up their first victory of the season when they defeated the crippled Red and Black team of the Waycross High school, 13-6.

Brunswick scored their first touchdown exactly 1 minute and 45 seconds after the referee's whistle opened the game. Securing the ball on Waycross' 20-yard line they pushed the ball across on a series of line bucks. The Glynn academy boys came right back after their initial success and worked the ball well down in Waycross' territory, where Arnold, on a fake line buck, swept around right end for a gain of 45 yards and a touchdown.

In the second quarter, the locals came back, and with a drive which completely swept the visitors off their feet, carried the ball from their own 20-yard line to Brunswick's 30-yard line, where a few seconds later Howell swept around left end for a touchdown. Waycross again threatened towards the close of this period, when they had the ball in the shadow of the visitors' goal, but were unable to push it across.

Both teams settled down during the second half, and the ball see-sawed back and forth, with neither team having a decided advantage. Brunswick was able to make several first downs during this half, while Waycross seemed helpless before the stonewall defense of the visitors. Inability of the Red and Black line to hold was largely responsible for the locals' defeat, the Brunswick forwards frequently sifting through and downing the runner before he could get started.

Viewing the News
By CLIFF WHEATLEY

The perpetrator of this column, like the conductors of various other columns that deal in southern football handicapping or doping, picked some scores a few days ago.

They were not good predictions, as most any unfortunate who happened to string along with them will tell you, should you run across one of the fellows who by this time ought to be flat like an 1898 dime.

Hit Once—Maybe.

This column hit once maybe, but it's mighty hard to miss everything, even in football. However, we assure you that wherever it was possible to get off the line, we succeeded very well, thank you.

That Auburn-Centre thing, for instance. This reporter was fairly certain the score would be 6 to 0. It's a little matter only that he thought the Colonels would do the scoring, the Tigers merely looking on.

Wasn't so bad at that. Most people looked for a Centre victory by three touchdowns. Even Greek George, who is better at this sort of stuff than we'll ever be, thought it would be like adding two and two for Centre.

"Tick" Pinched Himself.

Tick Tichenor, who can usually spot an Auburn victory easier than a Senegambian stevedore on his way to France could imagine he saw a submarine, spent Saturday night at the Atlanta Athletic club pinching himself.

Tick couldn't believe it. How can you blame the rest of us for being mildly surprised.

Vanderbilt's claims for the southern championship will be sounded from now on. It is a good claim, too. There was nothing particularly upsetting about Vandy's victory over Georgia.

Death Not Unexpected.

The well-informed knew that Vanderbilt's brilliant forward passing would score some. Most of them thought, however, that Georgia would make just a little bit more, as the thrift song used to have it.

The Commodores' 12-point margin was surprising. The Bulldogs' inability to score on a combination against which both Tech and Tennessee had managed to invent touchdowns added to the mystery.

About to Start.

The band wagon is about to start and every section of Dixie has its brag musician. Georgia has Tech and Alabama has Auburn, at least until Thanksgiving day. The South Atlantic offers the Tarheels and Tennessee boasts Vanderbilt.

Tech and North Carolina State ran true to form in their game. Three touchdowns was the consensus and a 17-point margin it was with the Yellow Jackets on top. After watching that assortment of passes uncorked by the Carolinians one doesn't wonder any longer why they have scored some this season.

Virginia Players From Many States

THREE ENDS FROM WEST VIRGINIA

Old Dominion Candidates in Lead

Charlottesville, Va., November 19. (Special.)—Fifteen states are represented on the Virginia squad which has now to meet the University of North Carolina in the closing game of the season on Lambeth field Thanksgiving day. Of the 35 men on the squad 14 hail from Virginia, three from West Virginia and two each from Maryland, Florida, New York, Kentucky and Washington.

Charlottesville can lay claim to having more sons in the list than any other city, for John Staige Davis, end, and Staige Davis Blackford, tackle, two regularrs in the line, along with Paul Walp and Herbert Dean, substitute backs, are all boys from the university city.

Lynchburg and Norfolk may claim a virtual tie for second place. From the Hill City comes Chuck Lewis, varsity center, and Issy Oppleman, veteran half back, and Lynchburg also claims Benny Arnold as an adopted son, although the fast back hails from Maryland. Norfolk has contributed Hal Little, and Bobby Taylor, substitute backs, and Bill Dietrick, sub end, while Holland, another end, comes from Willoughby Beach, not far from the port city.

Other Virginia men on the squad are Sam Maphis, of Warrenton, "V" man in the backfield, and the substitues, Cutchin, guard; Coleman Walker and Hunt, centers, and Buck Weaver, tackle.

"Tofie" and Benny.

The shining stars in Virginia lineup are sons of Maryland, Captain Thomas Selman Hall, guard, from Lothian, and George B. Arnold, half back, of Westminster. Toofie and Benny, as their teammates know them, are two of the most valuable wearers of the orange and blue this season.

All of the West Virginia boys are out for the flank positions. These are Eldridge Campbell, of Carbon; Walker Brown, of Huntington, and Alex Gates, of Charleston. Kentucky contribtues Sam Ward, of Paris, who is Captain Hall's running mate in guard, and Mike Hubbard, speedy sub back, of Bardstown.

Mait Wilson, the full back who has been ripping holes in enemy lines, is a Pittsburg boy who is playing his first year on the squad. The two regular quarterbacks come from southern states, Henry Foster from Knoxville, Tenn., and Tom McCoy from Asheville, N. C. Charlie Fenwick, is a Washington boy who is as good a kicker as he is a tackle.

Two members of the squad come across the continent from Washington, Jack Ryan, from Seattle, sub guard, and Walter Cameron, from Tacoma, second string quarter. Jim Winston and Dan Hennessy are from New York, while George Rainey and Tom Otto come from Florida. All four of these men are substitute linemen.

Fred Thesmar, who held down center until he was hurt in the Princeton game, is a son of Savannah; Gray Gibson, sub half back, comes from St. Louis, Mo., and Kaminer, sub quarter, from Glasden, S. C.

HOME COMIING FOR PRESBYS

Clinton, S. C., November 19.—(Special.)—From all parts of the state former students of Presbyterian college of South Carolina are expected to flock back here on Thanksgiving, which has been designated as "home coming day" by the alumni association of the local college.

In addition to the tender memories that cluster about the days spent on the local campus, which will be revived by a visit here, the date selected is the one for the annual battle between the P. C. and Newberry football teams.

And every one who has been a student of P. C. knows what rivals these two team are. But 22 miles apart, Presbyterian and Newberry are keenest of rivals among the colleges of the Palmetto state. Other colleges may outgrow their rivals or change from year to year but P. C. and Newberry, it would seem, will always be friendly rivals in every variety of contest.

If all our cane sugar had to be raised in Maine it would cost about $1,000 a pound, as the cane there grows only a few feet high and is not sweet.

LANIER HIGH IS DEFEATED

Washington, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—In a pretty game, clean and full of snap from start to finish, Washington High defeated Lanier High of Macon, Ga., on the local grounds Friday afternoon by a score of 20 to 3. A record crowd at the fair grounds saw Lanier go down gallantly in defeat, fighting to the last ditch.

In the first quarter, Washington got off to a quick start, scoring the first touchdown in the first five minutes of play. The locals outweighed the visitors by ten pounds to the man and this advantage was most apparent in the first half of the game, when steady line plunges by Washington at first swept Lanier off their feet. But what Lanier lacked in avoirdupois, she made up in fleetness and pluck, which was demonstrated to good effect, especially in the last quarter of the game.

Neither side was able to score in the second quarter. Both teams were being held almost to a standstill when attempts at forward passing were resorted to, but in the air game neither side was able to get by successfully.

Scores 13 Points.

In the third quarter, Washington scored 13 points when consistent gains by Lucas and Neal around Lanier's ends and successful line plunges by Nash and Brunner carried the ball to Lanier's 5-yard line. Brunner was sent through for the second touchdown. In a few minutes Neal had intercepted a forward pass and in a spectacular run for 35 yards and goal, ended Washington's points.

The brilliant feature of Friday's game came in the final quarter, when Lanier came back strong, full of pep and determination. Kinney's fast footwork around Washington's ends netted the visitors some pretty gains of ten to 15 yards each time he was given the ball. Carrying the oval thus to Washington's 35-yard line, Captain McKenzie for the visitors booted the oval for a perfect field goal, which netted Lanier their only point.

Lineup.

WASH.	Position	LANIER

HEADQUARTERS TROOP IS WINNER AT POLO

Headquarters troop, first squardon of the 108th calvary, defeated troop "C" in a Polo match yesterday afternoon by a score of 5 to 1. The game was a thriller from start to finish and some very good demonstrations of expertness at this fascinating sport were given by the players.

For the headquarters troop, Lieutenant Gewinner and Corporal Barker starred, scoring 2 goals each. Private Acton scored the other point for this team. Sergeant Waldo secured the only goal made by troop "C."

Headquarters Troop.
Lieutenant Gewinner	2
Corporal Barker	2
Private Acton	1
Troop "C."
Private Williams	0
Sergeant Waldo	1
Private Griffin	0

"Tad" Jones has been one of the most prominent figures in football for the last decade. A brilliant player in his undergraduate days at Yale, he has since achieved fame as a coach of remarkable ability. His views on the desirability of the formation of an eastern conference are of unusual significance at this time when the suggestion is being seriously discussed among followers of football.—EDITOR'S NOTE.

All manner of plans have been suggested as to how football might be benefited. The formation of an eastern conference seems to me to be the outstanding constructive idea which has been advanced. The suggestions that seek only to tear down and offer nothing constructive in return are worse than none at all and the less heard of them the better it will be for the game.

While I cannot speak for the Yale Athletic committee, I am sure that when the time comes this organization will be more than willing to enter such an institution as an eastern conference. There has been a feeling among certain Yale men for quite a while that such a development would be very fine for the sport and in fact they have already suggested the organization of such a body. In the past Yale has always been ready and willing to adopt any and all ideas that promised to help the development of football and if the conference proposition is seriously presented for consideration I don't think Yale will be found among the missing.

NO NEED TO CHANGE SCHEDULES.

The people who object to the idea of a conference because they think it would make it necessary for the members of this organization to change their present schedule, overlook the fact that where conferences now exist the various members do not have to meet on the football field. And, as a matter of fact, in several cases, members of the same conference do not meet in any sport. If an eastern conference were formed it would not be necessary for Yale, Harvard, Princeton, or any of the other larger colleges to change their schedules one bit. The only thing that these organizations would be asked to do would be to give their whole-hearted co-operation in the conference fight to make athletics cleaner—something that they should all be willing to do without any question.

Football coaches are in the game not only to develop winning teams, but also to develop the men who come under their charge. The development has to be complete: physical, moral, and mental. The establishment of an eastern conference would help the directors of athletics to accomplish these ends. In organization there is strength and the existence of an eastern conference would do more to help in stamping out all undesirable elements than any other one thing that could be devised.

FAVORS TRY-FOR-POINT RULE.

I think that the try-for-point after the touchdown is proving to be a success and I believe that it is a much better feature than the old rule which allowed the free kick of the goal. The present system makes it a team effort rather than an individual one and in this way it is a fairer test of the strength of the opposing elevens. The rules committee, I think, would do well to keep it in existence.

UPHOLDS INTER-SECTIONAL GAMES.

There has been a great deal of discussion on the subject of inter-sectional games. Some of the closest students of the game think that these contests are necessary to the development of the sport and other experts hold that such contests have a bad influence on the game, and should be discontinued. I can do no more than give my personal opinion on the subject: I am strongly for these games. I think that they do a great deal toward nationalizing football, toward making it better.

I do not believe, however, that these inter-sectional games and the various post-season contests should be labeled "championship games." There can be no one game of the season so labeled. Under the present condition it is impossible to decide which team is the best in the country, and calling any one team such is unfair to the others.

THE FUTURE OF FOOTBALL.

From the present indications, football is going to grow more and more popular as the years go by. It is impossible even now to accommodate the huge crowds that wish to see the games. The public is getting to understand the game more and more each season and the demand for tickets to the big games, I believe, will soon make even the present demands look small indeed. It is, therefore, the increasingly urgent duty of all those connected with football, to keep it on a high plane, to keep it free from any taint of commercialism.

NEBRASKA IS UNDEFEATED

Kansas City, Mo., November 19.—The game between the University of Nebraska and the Kansas Aggies at Lincoln, Nebr., yesterday, left the Cornhuskers at the top of the Missouri Valley conference, undefeated this season.

Nebraska defeated the Aggies, 21 to 0. The contest was the first between Nebraska and the Aggies since 1917.

Drake also remains unbeaten after having met and defeated Grinnell at Des Moines, Ia., 21 to 0. Drake has taken the scalps of Kansas, Washington and Ames.

Missouri easily defeated its opponent, Washington, at Columbia, Mo., 28 to 0. Kansas at Lawrence, Kas., defeated Colorado university, 39 to 6. Resuming football relations, broken off in 1920 when Oklahoma entered the Missouri Valley conference, Oklahoma played Texas at Norman and lost, 37 to 7.

Oklahoma Central Normal defeated Ames at Ames, Ia., 14 to 13.

2. Use only one side of the paper in writing your answers. You must number each page and each word submitted consecutively—1, 2, 3, etc. Write your full name and address in the upper right-hand corner of each page. All answers must be mailed by December 2, 1922, to The Atlanta Constitution. A 5 per cent additional prize will be awarded for promptness, as specified in the prize list.

3. The answer having the largest number of words which correctly name objects shown in the picture wins First Prize, etc.

4. In the event of ties, the full amount of the prize will be awarded each tying contestant.

5. The winning list will be made up from applicable words in all answers submitted and not from any predetermined or master list. One credit will be allowed for each correct word in your answer, and one credit will be deducted for each incorrect word or omission.

6. Three independent judges will judge the answers and award the prizes. Webster's New International Dictionary will be used by the judges as authority for all words. It is understood and agreed that participants entering this game will accept the judges' decision as final and conclusive.

7. Do not use obsolete, compound or hyphenated words, or any word made up of two or more complete English words.

8. Words of the same spelling can be used only once. Where the singular is used the plural must not be used, and vice versa. Each object may be named only once; however, you may name any visible part of an object.

9. Only one answer will be accepted from a family or from a group of persons who have worked on the picture together.

10. Every answer will receive the same consideration, regardless whether or not a subscription has been sent in. Neatness, style or handwriting will have no bearing on judging the winners.

11. Announcement of the prize winners and the winning list of words, together with the correct list determined by the judges, will be made in the columns of The Constitution just as soon after the close of the game as possible.

You Can Win $1,500 Cash!

Others have won substantial prizes in our previous word games. Why can't you win as easily THIS TIME?

Study the "P" Word Picture closely, and then make up your list. When you are pretty sure you have found all the objects beginning with "P," send in your list. It costs nothing to try. If the judges find your list FIRST PRIZE winner you will be awarded $35.00. You can win $35.00 without sending a subscription. But if you want to win $1,500.00, $1,000.00, or one of the large prizes, read the following:

If you send one six-months' subscription to The Daily and Sunday Constitution at $5.00 and win FIRST PRIZE you will receive $500 instead of only $35.00. (See second column in prize list).

Your BIG OPPORTUNITY is made possible by sending two six-months' subscriptions at $5.00 each, or one yearly subscription to The Daily and Sunday Constitution at $9.50. Then, if you win FIRST PRIZE, you will receive $1,500.00. (See last column in prize list).

Either new, renewal or future subscriptions will be accepted. Your own or a friend's or neighbor's order will count.

"Greenwich Village Follies"

(Coming to Atlanta Theater)

That much discussed theatric creation emanating from the inner shrine of New York's heralded Bohemian community, the Greenwich Village Follies, will be the attraction at the Atlanta theater on Thursday night, when it will begin an engagement of three nights and Saturday matinee. This is the second of the series of revusical comedies, one of which the Bohemians, Inc., produce each fall in New York. It is not to be confused with the first of these fleet annuals, well remembered for its remarkable engagement here last season. It is generally credited with surpassing the first of the "Follies" in all its antic, comic and melodic phases.

The "Follies" of Greenwich Village is famed for its artistry, for its delicacy of setting and coloring, for the genuine good taste of its staging and costuming, for its smartness, and because of the novelty of its design and construction. As becomes a spectacle proceeding from Greenwich Village it flounts tradition and convention at every turn. In every flirtatious movement and fantastic step it radiates the exotic atmosphere of New York's Quartier Latin.

The revue is distinguished for its silver hangings, its motif curtains, its studies in light on fabric and texture. The players of the "Follies" include Lou Powers, Rogers and Coleman, Arthur G. Hadley, George E. Dale, Abbott Adams, George Schiller, Lyman and Lockwood, Robert G. Dare, Rosa Rosalio, Nurova and Nelle, Crawford Sisters, Annie and Edward Prichard, and the West Sisters.

The artists' models, who have usurped the place once illuminated by the conventional chorus girl, are a naive and refreshing group of beauties, each a distinct type and dressed correspondingly. All of them are products of Mr. Anderson's discerning eye. They come from the studios of Manhattan's famous illustrators. Seats for the engagement go on sale today.

"The House of Glass."

(At the Forsyth.)

"The House of Glass," which will be the attraction at the Forsyth theater this week, is one of the most successful plays that has ever been produced by that nationally known combination of Cohan and Harris.

The play is replete with intensively emotional moments, and then there is enough comedy introduced to relieve the tense situations.

Miss Belle Bensett, that wonderful little actress and charming personality, will have every opportunity to make one of the biggest hits in her stage career, and in fact, all of the Forsyth players have an ideal opportunity in this play, to score with their many friends.

Keith Vaudeville.

(At the Lyric.)

Keith's Lyric starts a new week today with a bill calculated to meet all requirements of a discriminating public. Leading the procession is the old favorite, Joe Bennett, who after years on the musical comedy stage, and another period on vaudeville in a double act, is now "singling" around the circuit.

On the bill also are Thornton and Squires, with a laughable skit called "In the Swim;" the Countess Verona, with marvelous music on the czimbelon; Sultan, the educated horse, and Rasso and company, novelty manipulators.

"You'd Be Surprised."

(At Loew's Grand.)

"You'd Be Surprised," the first of the big unit productions being sent out by the Loew organization, will be presented at Loew's Grand theater for the first half of the week beginning today. Four tried and tested specialties are numbered among the entertainers and all combine in a miniature musical comedy as the big and concluding number of the bill, this feature lasting about thirty minutes.

The offering is entirely different from the usual run of vaudeville and is built along original lines. A variety of talent is combined in new songs, clever comedy and artistic dancing.

Clayton and Lennie, funnier than ever, will represent the English chappie and his friend with new material throughout. Mason and Cole will offer "Rain and Sunshine," a musical delight. Bernie, Remont and Bowers are harmony singers, and the Lampinis are French novelty illusionists. The feature of the screen bill is Shirley Mason in "The New Teacher."

It is anticipated that this remaining $25,000.00 will be quickly subscribed

The liberal terms of payment where desired, of 10 per cent cash and 10 per cent monthly until paid, has proven a popular feature to all classes of investors.

In the sale of this $25,000.00 capital stock now remaining, it is greatly hoped by the Company that it will be subscribed in small shares by a large number of people, so that the circle of friends of the company, already large, may be greatly widened; and the interest in a home industry be greatly increased through the agency of a personal bond of ownership of its stock.

Every subscriber to White Provision Co., capital stock is allied with the best interests of Georgia's rapid advancement and prominent position attained as one of the country's leading agricultural and live stock states.

The White Provision Co. has paid annually a cash dividend averaging better than 8% since it was oranized in 1906.

The company has no prefered stock, or bonds outstanding. The entire assets and earnings of the company belong to the common stockholders; and this is the stock now being offered.

The new issue of stock, now almost entirely sold, will be on a parity with all other stock outstanding, and will participate in all accrued earnings of the company, and in the full quarterly dividend for the last quarter of this year, beginning with October 1.

Inquiries concerning any feature of this sale of stock, addressed to any officer or director of the company, will be promptly and fully answered.

All subscriptions should be promptly filed either by phone, wire or mail addressed to

THREE ARE SLAIN BY UNKNOWN BAND

Bodies of Two Men and Woman Found Dead With Hands Bound Behind Backs.

Pikeville, Tenn., November 19.—That a band of six or seven unidentified men killed Jesse Rector, aged farmer; his son, York Rector, and the latter's wife at their home in the mountains near Melvine, Bledsoe county, Friday night, is the opinion of Sheriff A. T. Goforth, who returned late last night from the scene of the crime.

The only evidence of any value secured by the sheriff was furnished by Tom Rector, son of Jesse Rector and surviving member of the family. Young Rector, who is a typical mountaineer possessed of unusual ability to follow a human trail, told the sheriff that his kinsmen were murdered by a party of six or seven men. He said that he had found their trail and followed the tracks through a field and into a road where they mingled with other tracks.

Sheriff Goforth stated today that he had found Jesse and York Rector with their hands tied behind their backs with wire. The head of the younger man had been partly blown away with a shotgun and the remainder riddled with pistol balls. The father had been shot twice with pistols. Mrs. Rector's head was badly mutilated. It was said that at least four guns were used by the firing party.

While there is an absence of motive, Sheriff Goforth is proceeding in the theory that the killings are an outcome of the murder of Mailen Thurman, whose body was recently discovered in his home after he had been dead a week. The opinion was expressed by the sheriff that mountaineers had connected the Rectors with Thurman's death and had organized and took revenge.

WILL PUSH CHARGES AGAINST DAUGHERTY

Last Election Shows People Strongly Against Corruption, Senators Say.

Washington, November 19.—Announcement that they intended to "vigorously push impeachment proceedings against the attorney-general" was made in a joint statement today by Representative Keller, republican, Minnesota, who presented the original impeachment charges to the house, and Representative Woodruff, republican, Michigan.

"We will not be deterred from our insistence that the judiciary committee act upon the resolution to enable the impeachment of Mr. Daugherty to proceed to trial before the senate," said the statement. "We demand that the judiciary committee hear the evidence against Daugherty or state openly that it refuses to let the country know how he has conducted himself in office."

At the time the Keller charges were considered by the judiciary committee prior to the present recess, it was decided to postpone the formal hearing demanded by Mr. Keller until early in the regular session next month.

"The election results demonstrate," said the statement, "that the people are determined that graft and corruption shall be eliminated from the federal government. The fitness of Mr. Daugherty to hold office was one of the main issues of the campaign in many states. This issue was emphasized by speeches and in the platforms of successful candidates for both houses of congress and whenever Daughertyism was an issue, those candidates were elected regardless of their party affiliations. By their votes the people have demanded that the office of attorney-general of the United States be filled by a man of unquestioned integrity."

NEW YORK IS LEADER OF AMERICAN PORTS

Washington, November 19.—New York with 9,109,868 tons incoming and 9,157,139 tons outgoing led all American ports during the year ended last June 30 in the movement of overseas cargoes, according to figures compiled by the shipping board's research bureau. By a wide margin New York also topped all ports during the preceding fiscal year in cargoes entered and cleared.

Statistics of the bureau are based on the tonnage of cargoes on board vessels which took final clearance or made initial entrance at the ports.

Fiscal year 1922: Cargoes entered New York, New Orleans, Boston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, Galveston, San Francisco, Norfolk, Los Angeles, Portland, Maine; Charleston, S. C., and Jacksonville. Cargoes cleared, New York, New Orleans, Galveston, Philadelphia, Baltimore, San Francisco, Portland, Ore.; Seattle, Los Angeles, Savannah, Boston and Portland, Maine.

IMPRESSIVE FUNERAL FOR GENERAL WRIGHT

Memphis, Tenn., November 19.—With the impressive ritualistic service of the Roman Catholic church, the body of General Luke E. Wright, secretary of war in President Roosevelt's cabinet, for several years governor general of the Philippines, and ambassador to Japan, was laid to rest today in Forest Hill cemetery, in the presence of hundreds of Tennessee citizens who gathered to honor his memory.

Flags throughout the city were at halfmast, and, in obedience to a general order issued last night by Secretary of War Weeks, flags at every army post in the country were displayed at half staff throughout the day.

Funeral services for the distinguished Memphis man were held at St. Peter's Catholic church, the Rev. J. L. Pastorelli, O. P., officiating. He was assisted by a number of other priests of the diocese. Special music by the choir was given.

Services at the church were attended by the entire membership of the Memphis Bar association and the church was crowded with the friends of General Wright. A requiem mass will be sung tomorrow morning.

Buys Bronwood Store.

Dawson, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—The Bronwood drug company, formerly owned and operated by Grover Wall, has been purchased by George Hill, of this city. The store will, in the future, be the Bronwood pharmacy, and Mr. Hill will devote his entire attention to the business. On leaving for Bronwood, Wall has been succeeded by Mercer Wooten, formerly of Shellman, who will have charge of the Dawson pharmacy.

Missouri Town Burns.

Sikeston, Mo., November 19.—Virtually the entire business section of Cran, a small town eight miles from here, was destroyed by fire of undetermined origin today. The total damage estimated was between $150,000 and $200,000. The town had no fire-fighting apparatus and as a result the blaze burned for seven hours, consuming many business places.

Wide Fluctuations Occur In High Cotton Market

New Orleans, La., November 19.—In the cotton market last week fluctuations again were wide. From advances of 45 to 70 points over the level of the preceding week's close there was a drop to levels 65 to 128 points under. Fluctuations were within limits of 132 to 176 points, December in the early part of the week trading up to 26.10 while in the later sessions it worked as low at 24.37 a pound.

Spots were not as well sustained as futures and lost 112 points on middling which closed at 25.25 as against 24.98 as the closing price on December. At the end of last week a year ago middling closed at 16.50 a pound.

Bullish private bureau reports on ginning helped to carry the market to its highest levels. An estimate of only 8,876,000 bales ginned to the 14th of November caused much buying as the total was well under general expectations and indicated only 736,000 bales produced the last period. It revived very small crop guesses and strengthened the belief among a considerable element that the total crop would not be much, if any, in excess of 9,500,000 bales. For a while these figures and the small crop estimates that followed fairly well dominated the trading but late in the week they were lost sight of.

The slowing down in spot trading over the belt was a bear argument of some weight and, at times, it caused much selling, although the argument from the long side was that smaller sales were more the result of the withdrawal of sellers from the market than they were the result of a falling off in the demand. Late in the week spots news was not quite as bullish in character and there was a resumption of hedge selling which, at some stages, have an adverse effect on prices.

This week the fifth report of the season on ginning by the census bureau on Tuesday is likely to dominate a good part of the trading.

POISON SUFFERER TAKEN TO GRADY

Suffering from alcoholic and bromidic poisoning, J. H. Jackson, 500 Capitol avenue, was taken to the Grady hospital Sunday night. A stomach pump operation was resorted to. Surgeons say the man will recover. Owing to the patient's weakened condition he was unable to make a statement to the authorities. Investigating officers stated the man's condition was not due to an attempt to commit suicide.

HOME IS PILLAGED BY BOLD INTRUDER

Thieves walking through the front entrance of the J. L. Roberts home at 19 Forrest avenue Sunday night while the family was visiting nearby, ransacked the house, taking numerous items of jewelry, clothing and silverware, according to a report made to the police.

JEWEL THIEF PLIES TRADE AT DEPOT

A pearl necklace and a pin set with a large diamond, which Mrs. J. F. Powers, of Cartersville, was carrying in her handbag, were stolen Sunday night while she was waiting for a train at the Terminal station, she told the police. The jewelry is valued at several hundred dollars, it was said. She furnished the police a description of a suspect.

Mrs. T. G. Hilliard.

Waycross, Ga., November 19.—(Special.)—Mrs. T. G. Hilliard, 58, died this afternoon at her home after a long illness. Besides her husband the deceased is survived by one daughter, Mrs. C. B. McRae, of this city, and two sisters, Mrs. J. A. Youmans, of Statesboro, and Mrs. A. A. Dugger, of Quitman.

Mrs. Hillard had liver in Waycross for more than a quarter of a century.
